PUBLISH BOOK OF WRITINGS BY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Poetry, Essays and Short Stories Contained in "Star Dust"

"Star Dust," a collection of poetry, essays, and short stories written by Appleton high school students, is ready for publication as a result of the creative writing contest sponsored this year by Quill and Scroll, honorary journalistic organization. Miss Ellen Ballet, senior student and president of Quill and Scroll, edited the original booklet with the assistance of Misses Marcella Buesing, Anita Cast, Thelma Nohr, Betty Elias, Dorothy Cohen and Della Van Den Bosch.

For three years a volume of high school writing has been published under the various titles of "Inkings," "Shavings" and "Senior Scribbles." The purpose of the contest is to interest students in creative writing with the ultimate object of compiling the best in a representative booklet. The contest this year was open to all students, and each class had an individual contest.

The contest included essays, poetry, short stories, one-act plays and editorials, however no plays or editorials were handed in. Miss Adela Klumb, Miss Min Smith and Miss Sophia Haase judged the entries. Chosen for a booklet was a sonnet written by Edward Weismiller, senior; the poem, "Dream Sailor," Ethel Luedtke, junior; poem, "Ba-

Montana Woman Lost 17 Pounds Weight In 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in energy and vigor.

Gain in charm and vivaciousness. Gain a healthy complexion and have eyes that sparkle with buoyant health.

And at insignificant cost—Isn't it time to use common sense?

Please read this letter carefully: "Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce. I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give 'Kruschen Salts' a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 236 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. Just try one bottle and by following directions, I am sure it will convince any one. I bought my second bottle today."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drugstore in America.

Why not try one bottle—if not joyfully satisfied—money back. When taking Kruschen you can reduce more swiftly by cutting out pastry and fatty meat—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—it's the safe way to reduce. Schlitz Bros. # Council Fails To Push Charges Against Street Lighting Committee

2 RESOLUTIONS ARE DEFEATED BY ALDERMEN

Departure of VanderHeyden Brings to End Debate Over Committee Fees

BY VIOLET CHRISTENSEN

Ugly charges, like evil gnomes, poked their heads out of dark corners at the common council meeting Wednesday night, scampered about the council chambers, and ducked back into their stygian hovels without accomplishing anything more than a flurry of argument and a decided brown taste. A temporary darkness when the lights ceased to function, only enhanced the feeling of hidden things lurking in the dark.

Someone suggested that there be a general housecleaning of all the "wild charges" that have been floating around the council chambers for months past. The council, tired of veiled insinuations and personalities, wearily attempted to give dignified consideration to the charges made, and then as quickly as etiquette would permit, shoved them into a corner, much like a mother admonishing her child that little children should be seen and not heard.

The untimely departure of Alderman W. H. VanderHeyden, who was called home, perhaps aborted the argument on the two most inflammable subjects: that the lighting committee be reconstituted from the charges that it had collected unnecessary committee fees, and that the city attorney be instructed to collect all money illegally collected from all ex-officers and present officers of the city.

Dennis Committee Charge

Both subjects were brought up by the Fifth ward alderman. Before he was called out he explained that records show that the committee service charge is untrue, that his committee had not met more frequently than any other committee of any other ward, and that in one instance, apparently questioned by someone, a committee charge of $15 for a meeting called immediately prior to a council meeting was legitimate because a damaged light pole was presenting a hazard to the public.

Suggesting that a committee be appointed to investigate the committee fees, Alderman Steinhauer said that he had no right to vote on committee fees for a meeting held just prior to a council meeting. Alderman George Packard retorted that in all justice to the Fifth ward alderman it should be understood that other committees had taken this prerogative, and that as far as he knew no alderman had ever refused to accept a check for a meeting that had been held on 20 or 25 minutes.

Terminating the election grievance, Alderman Philipp Vogt declared the attempt to drag election charges into the council chambers, and Alderman C. J. Wassenberg wanted to know if the committee or just the chairman was being accused. Both Alderman R. F. McGillan's amendment that a committee be appointed to investigate, and an original motion, that the committee be reconstituted, were lost.

The second resolution hurried into oblivion by the same route. Mayor John Goodland, Jr., warned against turning down the resolution too hastily, advising the council that a charge of this kind should be carefully investigated. The attorney objected to being authorized to investigate, reminding the council that he would be expected to take some action. Alderman Steinhauer remarked that bringing a charge of this kind in at the eleventh hour was a "slam on every present and past official."

Kill Labor Ordinance

The labor ordinance, calling for the employment of home labor at prevailing wage scales for an 8-hour day, was turned down by a 5-6 vote, Alderman Steinhauer, McGillan, Groth, Vogt and Wassenberg voting for it, and Earle, Gmeiner, Kettner, Eckert, Richard and Thompson against it.

Mayor Goodland questioned the origin of the ordinance, pointing out that the Trade and Labor council resolution, apparently the bud that blossomed into the ordinance, had called only for the employment of home labor. He wanted to know the source of the additions, and asked why they had not been presented to the council. He also stressed the necessity of this ordinance, and pointed out before indulging in the expense of publishing it.

Alderman Vogt, chairman of the ordinance committee, maintained that the ordinance had originated with the Trade and Labor council resolution, but that the ordinance committee improved upon it because it wanted to do a complete job rather than a half one. He insisted that any member of the council had a right to present an ordinance, and described the laboring conditions that, in his opinion, make such an ordinance necessary and just.

Another member of the committee, Alderman Wassenberg, explained that the ordinance committee had met with the Trade and Labor council and found that body in sympathy with the additions to their original request.

Not Logical—Thompson

Declaring that it is not the council's problem to settle economic problems, Alderman Thompson argued that the ordinance is not logical, though its intended purpose, raising the standard of living, is commendable. He showed that it would be a handicap for the council to set a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor when the city itself is employing labor for less than that and that insisting upon time and a half pay for overtime would be a serious handicap on construction jobs, when so much depends upon the weather. No action was taken on Mr. Vogt's request that those who voted against the ordinance prepare a document that would be satisfactory to them.

Two sections of the street and a bridge report called for and approved.

APPLETON MAN TAKES WAUSAU GIRL AS BRIDE

Miss Grace Herrmann, daughter of the Rev. E. Herrmann, Wausau, and Earl A. Vellin, 802 N. Oneida-st., Appleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Vellin, Bessemer, Mich., were married Saturday at Wausau. They motored to Appleton Sunday where they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Verwey, 802 N. Oneida-st. Mr. and Mrs. Vellin will make their home in Appleton where the bridegroom is a salesman for the Heinz company.

The suggestion that the American Legion be instructed to move the monument in Soldier's Square, and that the city remove the boulevard was accepted by a 5-6 vote, and the recommendation that the bridge tenders' wage be fixed at $70 a month for an 8-hour day was approved by an 8-4 vote.

Alderman Thompson, who with Packard, Richard, Earle and VanderHeyden voted against the section of the report, stated that the Legion could not be asked to remove the monument as the Legion does not own it, and that it would be unfair to property owners to transform the square into a public parking place without first holding a public hearing. Affirmative votes on the question were Steinhauer, Gmeiner, McGillan, Groth, Kettner, Vogt, and Wassenberg.

Renew Salary Debate

The bridge tender salary brought up the old arguments about a living wage, short season of work, and the capabilities of bridge tenders. Alderman Wassenberg, McGillan and Vogt felt that the wages should be at least 35 cents an hour, and preferably 40, and that it was an injustice to attempt to cut the wages 30 per cent. Alderman Gmeiner, Steinhauer and VanderHeyden argued that the three 8-hour shifts had been created to give jobs to more men and that there had been no intention of changing the wages to increase the expense to the city. Alderman Steinhauer argued that the wages, because of their nature, should be given to men who cannot handle other work, and that hundreds of men who could do the work could be obtained for $70 a month.

The $70 wage was approved by Alderman Steinhauer, Earle, Thompson, Gmeiner, Richard, Groth, VanderHeyden, and Kettner. Alderman Vogt, Wassenberg, McGillan and Packard voted against it.

The rest of the street and bridge report was adopted. It provided for the rental of a dumping ground on the Herman Nickles farm for $75 a month, gave permission to the Northern Greyhound lines and the Interstate Transit lines to operate buses over a specified route in the city, permitted Toivo Salo to operate a popcorn stand on College-ave, and specified the purchase of property in Taylor street, Sixth ward, for street purposes, and the sale of four lights posts to the Buttes des Morts golf club.

The street lighting committee chairman reported that the city is being charged for five street lights not in operation, 10 lights on Lawrence college property, two others on private property, and three in the town of Menasha.

To Condemn Property

Condemnation proceedings will be started against the Miller and McCann properties, needed for alley purposes. The city attorney explained that 10 feet of the Miller property will be donated, and another 10 feet will be paid for $300, which would provide the 50 feet necessary for the alley. This offer was made with the qualification that the southwest corner of Superior and Lawrence-sts be placed in the light manufacturing district. A petition suggesting this lot as a parking place was placed on file. The board of public works was instructed to obtain prices on the McCann property.

The amendment to the junk ordinance, changing section 10.604 to affect any dealer in any section other than Fourth ward for the sale of junk, was adopted. Five other ordinances were held over until the May meeting of the council.

A public hearing on the summer's paving program will be held April 24, and the paving bids were held over until a later meeting. The contract for sewers on South River-st was awarded to John McHugh, the only bidder. The bid was $25.50 a lineal foot.

The construction of a new bridge over the old one over the Green Bay and Mississippi Company canal was referred to the board of public works to determine who shall bear the expense, the canal company or the city.

Asks Dedication Support

Alderman VanderHeyden moved that the city give its full support to the dedication of a monument commemorating the treaty between the Menominee Indians and the United States government. A petition asking for a half holiday for school children on May 15, for this celebration was presented.

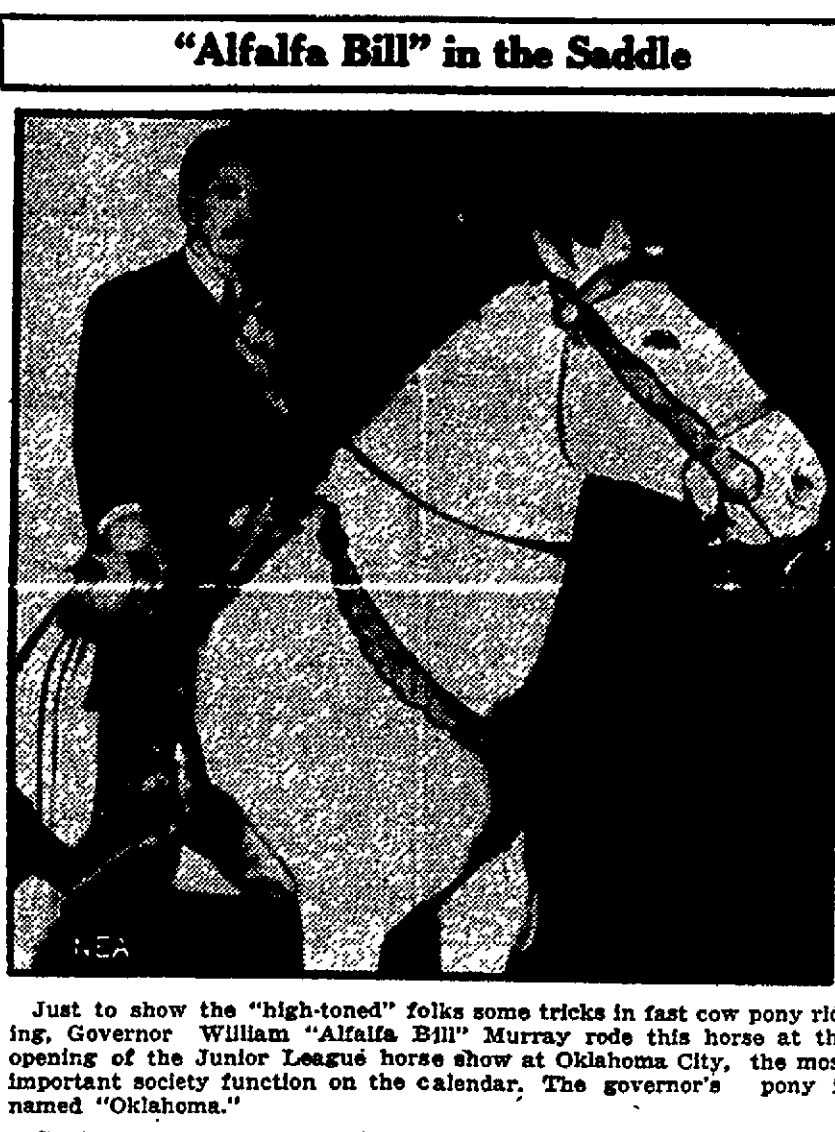

The council approved, Glendale plat, town of Grand Chute, and placed it in block 2, Edward West plat, Fourth ward in the local business district. The National Board of Fire Underwriters report was referred to the fire and water committee.

The east wing of the City Home was designated as a city hospital. Alderman McGillan explained that this section of the home was originally built for hospital purposes, but that it has to be designated as a hospital before it can be used for this purpose.

The light on Newberry-st over the railroad tracks will be moved west to the top of the hill, and a new light will be placed on W. Oneida-st. The council refused the request for a light on Welmer-st.

RICHARD BANDY ON TRIAL IN SHEBOYGAN

Brother of Gale Bandy Faces Charge of Implication in Burglary

Trial of Richard Bandy, charged with implication in the burglary of the Otto Kuechle store at Sheboygan last summer, went on trial in circuit court for Sheboygan on Wednesday. Bandy is a brother of George Gale Bandy, formerly of Rhineland and believed to have been the ring leader of the gang that burglarized stores in more than 12 Wisconsin cities and who escaped from Sheboygan jail only to be shot and killed by a night watchman for a Los Angeles warehouse a few weeks later. Rugs and draperies valued at more than $10,000 were taken from the Kuechle company.

The gang burglarized the Fashion Shop here in October and got away with more than $1500 worth of merchandise and cash. The merchandise was recovered at Kenosha when a cottage on the lake front was raided and Bandy, Jerome Eggert, Mrs. Gale Bandy and Mrs. Viola Johnston were arrested. Eggert is serving a sentence at Green Bay, Mrs. Johnston is at Taycheedah for her part in helping her husband, while Roy Johnston, another member of the gang, escaped from Marathon-co jail at Wausau.

WOULD HALT BUILDING OF GAS STATION

Injunction Granted to Stop City from Issuing Building Permit to Oil Firm

A temporary injunction, restraining the city of Appleton from issuing a building permit authorizing construction of an oil and gas filling station at the northwest corner of N. Union-st and W. Wisconsin-ave, was granted yesterday by Judge Fred V. Heineemann in municipal court to Emery R. Rusch, 1317 N. Union-st.

Mr. Rusch owns the lot next to the corner where the 3uth Oil company, which owns the corner lot, is planning to erect a filling station. Mr. Rusch claims that the ordinance placing Wisconsin-ave in a business district is invalid and discriminatory. It is pointed out by Mr. Rusch that he has built a home, in which he has invested a considerable sum of money, on the assumption that he was in a residential district where his property could not be reduced in value by the nearby erection of a business place. He claims the construction of a filling station on the lot next to his home will result in the immediate depreciation of the value of both his home and his lot causing a considerable financial loss.

The injunctions were served on John Goodland, Jr., mayor; Carl J. Becker, city clerk; and John N. Welland, building inspector, yesterday afternoon by Sheriff John Lappen.

Prepare Answer

After presentation of the injunction at the meeting of the common council last night the matter was turned over to Alfred C. Bosser, city attorney. He has 20 days in which to file an answer to the complaint.

Mayor Goodland this morning said that progress demanded the placing of Wisconsin-ave in a business district.

"At one time there were residences on College-ave, our main business street today," the mayor said. "Gradually, however, these residences, some of them show places of the city, were crowded out by the demands of business for more space. Mr. Rusch had plenty of time to air his grievances before the council took action on this matter. He knew, before he built his home, that this ordinance was being considered. There were plenty of public hearings on the matter and he should have presented his complaints then."

The ordinance placing the entire street in a business district, was adopted by the common council about a month ago by a vote of 10 to 20.

BELLAIRE RESIDENTS PLAN ORGANIZATION

A permanent organization of persons living in the vicinity of Bellaire park will be effected at a meeting at 7:30 Friday evening at the home of H. L. Davis, 1238 E. Ophees-st. About 50 invitations have been sent to persons living near the park, but the committee urges all interested parties to attend, whether or not they received written invitations.

Initial steps in the organization of the group, which probably will be known as the Bellaire Park Improvement association, were taken at a meeting about two weeks ago. The purpose of the organization, tentatively outlined at that meeting, were fourfold: the development of the park, the ultimate removal of the railroad tracks along the river, the beautification of the banks of the river, and the improvement of sanitary conditions by the extension of a storm sewer.

R. S. Powell is temporary president, and V. J. Whelan, is temporary secretary.

PROBERS ATTEMPT TO GAG REPORTER AFTER HE'S QUIZZED

Memphis, Tenn. — (AP) — The Commercial Appeal says today that one of its reporters was summoned before the federal grand jury to divulge a source of information and then threatened with citation for contempt of court if he reported his appearance.

The reporter, J. H. Lockart, declined to tell the inquisitors the source of a story about 17 secretly drawn prohibition indictments, stating that newspaper ethics demanded a confidential source be kept inviolate. A prohibition investigator then warned Lockart that he would be subject to contempt proceedings if he published a story about his questioning.

The Commercial Appeal city editor assigned another reporter to "cover" Lockart's experience.

COUNTY BLIND TO BE GUESTS OF LIONS AT BARN DANCE FROLIC

Blind persons in Outagamie-co will be guests of Appleton Lions club at the WLS Barn Dance Frolic at Lawrence Memorial chapel Friday evening, it was announced by the committee this morning. The blind people have only to apply at Belling drug store for their tickets.

The frolic is being sponsored by the Lions in an effort to raise funds with which to centralize all blind work in the county. The club will establish an office in Appleton where purchase of materials and sale of articles will be centralized and placed on a business-like basis. The Lions have found that blind persons experience difficulty in securing materials at a low price and considerable more trouble selling articles after they are made.

WLS Barn Dance Frolic is a vaudeville show featuring 10 well known radio artists from station WLS, the Prairie Farmer. Station at Chicago. The frolic is a weekly feature of station WLS. It goes on the air every Saturday evening.

Among the artists appearing here is Pie Plant Pete, singer of cowboy songs, and mountain songs, Grace Wilson, contralto, who has made a hit with popular songs; Harry and Leonard, a comedy and singing team; and Rube Tronson and his WLS Cowboys.

The latter act features a group of players of various musical instruments ranging from the harmonica to banjo and guitar. They play songs of the mountaineer and cowboy.

Tickets for Friday's program all will be reserved, it has been announced. Formerly it was planned to reserve only 400 seats and sell the rest as general admissions. Seats are on sale at Belling's drug store, and many choice seats still are available.

COUNTRY NEEDS MORE RELIGION, PASTOR CLAIMS

Rev. Anton Cedarholm Blames Present Moral Code for Marriage Failures

Quoting Thomas Edison, that "God would not permit the world to advance much further materially until it catches up spiritually," the Rev. Anton Cedarholm preached on America's great need of a religious awakening at the Baptist church Wednesday evening.

"Our country is passing through a financial and moral depression baffling the most brilliant minds," he said. "We are living in the day of so-called education, the development of man, and scientific progress, and in spite of all this we are in the most terrific crime wave and disrespect for law and order that this nation has ever known."

"We will not improve the condition by the efforts of science, inventions or any education that leaves out God. Our present moral code, permitting as it does an unprecedented moral laxity, is responsible for the failure of marriage unions, and the failure of the marriage union is in turn responsible for the greater share of the murders, suicides and crime which are demoralizing our country."

"Do away with the home and you do away with the backbone of the nation. The home is the birthplace of all that is decent, and if the child is not taught respect for law and order in the home chances are he will never be taught it anywhere else. President Hoover said, 'Give me a generation of properly trained children and we will banish existing conditions.'"

He declared that the present wave of agnosticism is not so much irreligious as it is a protest against the hollow and sham religion of the present day.

"We must get back to the moral code of the Bible or we are ruined," Rev. Cedarholm said. "Back to the Bible and its Christ and wholesome Christian living which will make religion a living issue and not a dismal, despoiled form. We need a revival among the Christian leaders and preachers, we need positive speaking in the pulpits. The Bible does not need protection, it needs proclamation backed up by clean, wholesome living. We must return to the Bible and its Christ before we can return to normal living."

Tonight Mr. Cedarholm will speak on God's definition of a Wise Man.

GIVE DATES FOR ELECTION IN OHIO

Primary in August, Final Vote in November to Fill Longworth Seat

Columbus, Ohio — (AP) — A primary will be held in August and an election in November in the First Congressional district of Ohio to select a successor to the late Nicholas Longworth, Cincinnati, it was officially announced today at Governor White's office.

The primary, for nomination of candidates, probably will be held on the regular primary day, the Tuesday after the first Monday in August. The election will be held on regular election day in November.

It was said that the governor's office felt that it was very probable State Senator David Lorchach, Democrat, Cincinnati, would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Cincinnati, Ohio — (AP) — Speaker Longworth left his entire estate to his widow, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, under terms of his will which was filed here today in probate court. No estimate of the value of the estate was given.

The document was dated Nov. 12, 1925 and was brief. Mrs. Longworth was named as executrix. Congressman Longworth died one week ago at Aiken, S. C., after a short illness.

FOUR SENTENCED IN SPOONER BANK HOLDUP

Shell Lake, Wis. — (AP) — Four youths were under sentence today on grand larceny charges and a fifth was held for trial April 27 in connection with the $7,500 robbery of the Spooner State bank Monday. Earl E. Conditson, son of a Spooner physician and a premedical student at the University of Minnesota, Charles Bushey, Spooner, and William Price and Robert Schwab, both of Minneapolis, pleaded guilty and were sentenced four to eight years each in the Green Bay reformatory. Henry Norwick, 28, assistant cashier of the bank, pleaded not guilty.

Dist. Atty. Glenn R. Douglas said the charge was reduced from bank robbery to grand larceny because the youths were first offenders.

VALLEY SCHOOLS COMPETE TODAY IN ORATORICAL MEET

Simon Sigman Represents Appleton High School at Green Bay

Seven high schools in the Fox river valley were represented in the annual valley oratorical contest at East Green Bay high school this afternoon. The contest, which began at 2 o'clock, was preceded by a dinner for the contestants, faculty representatives and high school principals.

Simon Sigman, recent winner of the annual William Heiss oratorical contest at Appleton high school, represented Appleton. He was accompanied by H. H. Helble, principal, and Miss Mary Carr, home school coach. His oration was a speech by Anatole France, "Banish Hate from Education." He was trained by Miss Carrier.

The only girl in the group is from Coonto high school, Miss Aileen Noonan, who spoke on "The Fifth Horseman." The Green Bay representatives were John Byrnes, East high, with the subject, "The New Frontier," and Orville Schaffer, West high, who spoke on "Tomorrow's Extra." Manitowish high school was represented by Charles Kippen, with the subject, "The Golden Curtain," and the Appleton school, George Comte, "The Last Line of Defense," Sheboygan high school, Joseph Wilkus, "The Delusion of Equality," John Comte, Marinette, is regarded as an experienced speaker.

Neither Fond du Lac nor Oshkosh high schools competed in the valley contest. Fond du Lac high school had adopted the policy of not participating in high school contests, outside of its student body. As a tradition of the contest, the seven coaches acted as judges, each grading the contestants except his own representative. The winner is selected on the basis of comparative grading.

NO LARGE U. S. FORCE SENT TO NICARAGUA

Washington — (AP) — It seemed less probable today that the United States would send a material force to Nicaragua to protect American property.

The government had indicated, however, it would make every effort to prevent loss of American lives. The gunboat Asheville, with her nearly three-score marines, was under orders to remain at Puerto Cabezas to guard American officials here, however, expressed the opinion attempts might not be made to protect property unless more urgent circumstances develop.

The department had under consideration repeated requests from the Standard Fruit and Steamship company of New Orleans for steps which would offer additional protection for its $13,000,000 worth of holdings in northeastern Nicaragua.

U. S. EXPECTED TO RECOGNIZE NEW REPUBLIC

Awaits Action by Other European Countries in Spanish Upheaval

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington (CPA)—Recognition of the Spanish republic by the United States will follow whenever recognition is extended by the other European countries. This is the present policy of the Washington government and it has no bearing on whether the new government is constitutional or how it will function so far as Spanish internal affairs are concerned.

Naturally the overthrow of a monarchy is the cause of much concern because of the political instability that is usually left in its wake. More and more, however, in recent years have democratic peoples been able to accomplish changes in their form of government with a minimum of bloodshed. The significant thing about the revolutions in South America this year was the comparatively little warfare between the opposing elements.

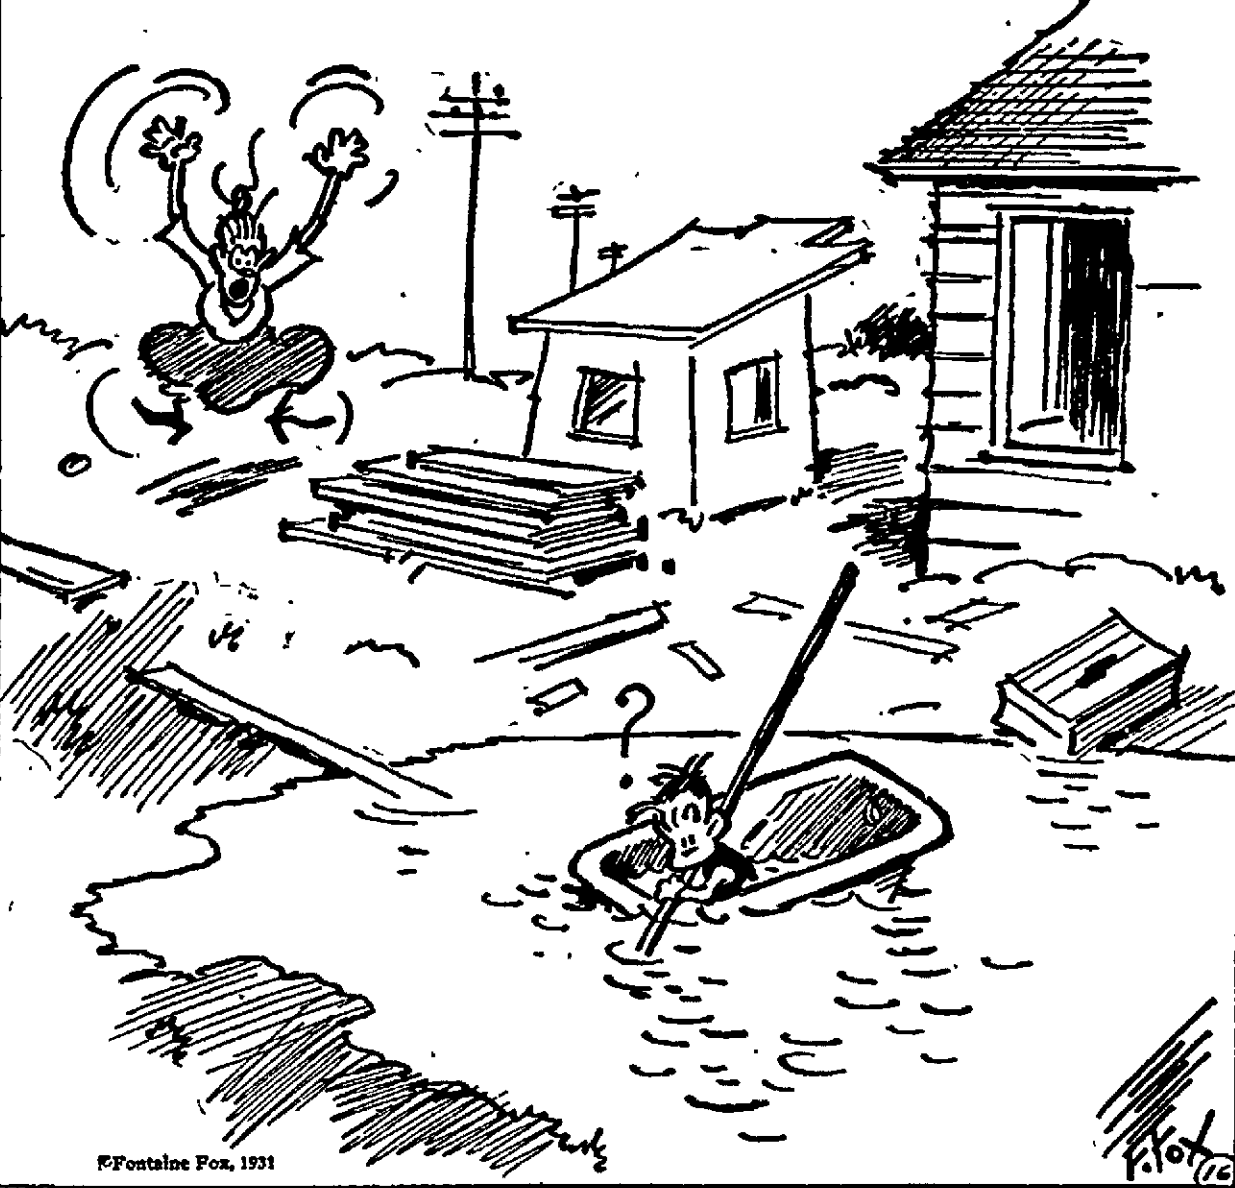

Published reports stating that the Spanish monarch felt sure of a large portion of the army and that he saw an inevitable conflict leads to the belief that economic factors are of controlling interest nowadays whenever a political readjustment becomes necessary. The Spanish king is known to have immense holdings in the industries and utilities of Spain.

Fear Trade Slump
Civil war would only reduce their value and curtail his fortune as it would the holdings of the very class which has been outspoken in his support. Abdication was not only a peaceful course but it was the most economical.

Externally Spain's credit will be temporarily affected and foreign financing as a whole may not have sympathetic treatment, but on the other hand the trouble in Spain has been for a long time regarded as inevitable and it may prove to be a clearing of the skies.

The political and trade relations between the United States and Spain have for many years been on a satisfactory basis and there is no reason to suppose that there will be any change because of the republican form of government. The peaceful revolution is not expected to affect Spanish purchases in the United States though for the time being Spanish exchange will be lower.

Altogether there is gratification here that civil war in Spain has been avoided. It may be a long time before the new government is able to reconcile all the political factions and it is recognized that there may be danger of future outbreaks, but on the whole the disposition here is to commend the course of the Spanish monarch and to believe that progress has been made toward ultimate stability.

if the first-choice tire costs no more, there's not much point in buying the second-choice tire, is there? Well, Goodyear Tires cost no more! And as for being first-choice, they're that by millions more sold every year. "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than any other kind." You owe it to yourself to know the reasons why Goodyear Tires lead all others so greatly. They are the very reasons that should prompt you also to decide: "I will buy only the leading make of tire!"

*We will demonstrate TWO REASONS WHY GOODYEAR IS THE LEADING MAKE OF TIRE

1 The famous Goodyear All-Weather tread is superior in traction. Note how the deep-cut, right-gripping blocks are placed. In the center of the tread, where they belong. Press the palm of your hand upon this tread and feel how the blocks grip and pinch the flesh. This illustrates the All-Weather Tread's holdfast action on pavement or roads.

2 The patented Goodyear year-round Cord Carcass is superior in vitality and long life. Under continued flexing or sudden road-shock, where ordinary cords fatigue or snap, the extra-elastic Super-Cord's stretch and recover, like rubber bands. Ask us to show you on our cord-testing machine the extra stretch—up to 61% greater—of Super-Cord over the cord used in other tires.

THE CASE OF ILLINOIS

Governor Emmerson of Illinois, facing the same problem that other governors like Smith of New York and Kohler of Wisconsin had faced in relation to the repeal of state measures for the enforcement of prohibition, came to a different conclusion.

He vetoed the repeal measure passed by the Illinois legislature in spite of a tremendous majority polled at a referendum whereby the people of that state expressed the sentiment that it go.

In so doing he evidenced little regard for his own political future and much courage, though the reasons he advanced are without strength.

He was concerned because of his conclusion that the repealing act attempted to "nullify the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment to the constitution of the United States" and that in effect it was nullification itself.

That is a conclusion that was drummed into the governor's mind by the dregs but it is not a truthful one by any means.

It is disputed by the Eighteenth Amendment itself, for it provides that "the congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

There is no duty upon the states to enforce this measure unless by indirect. It would have been an easy matter to place that duty upon them instead of merely saying they had power concurrently with congress in the premises.

Of course the people of Illinois when they voted wet at the referendum were fully aware of the fact that a repeal of their law did not take them out from under the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution.

Their purpose, like that of the people of Wisconsin, was to register an effective protest against prohibition and in a practical manner to demonstrate to the other states that might be withholding their consent to a repeal of the amendment, the futility of attempting to enforce it where it ran counter to a strong public opinion.

The veto of Governor Emmerson makes all the plainer the necessity of a national referendum upon this subject. It is not unlikely that as a candidate for reelection he would be voted for by many who preferred to have him sign the bill and merely because he showed a strength of character in doing what he thought was right but knew was unpopular.

The pity of it all is that in a state like Illinois where repeal is given a majority of over 500,000 votes the people cannot have the right to effectively curb and otherwise control the use of intoxicants instead of daily facing the unspeakable conditions that prevail there.

OUR GYPSIES

A census of Americans who make it a practice to live abroad permanently has been completed by the State department.

It shows that 386,272 come within that class.

It fails to give the desirable information of how many of these are abroad necessarily, that is representing either the government or some of our business institutions, and how many are abroad because they no longer care for their native land.

One may be justly suspicious that the condition in the Azores, those islands at which Columbus stopped last before his plunge into the west and the dark, may be prevalent elsewhere.

For there are 16,949 Americans living permanently in the Azores and almost all of them in fact are natives of those islands who considered it best to come to the United States, become naturalized, make money and return to their native soil to live in ease and luxury on savings they accumulated here, but wisely and tenaciously clung to their American citizenship, not only as a matter of pride, but with the feeling that under the wild vagaries of Portuguese rule it might be better to always have one anchor out to windward.

The United States has provided the money for many to live independently in their native lands, and American citizenship has furnished the security and freedom that really make life worth while.

And how well they know it!

AUSTRALIA AND SOCIALISM

New South Wales is taking action toward the eventual consummation of a socialistic state. The Labor party under the leadership of Premier Lang is supporting policies verging on complete control by the state of all essential industries. A drastic "three year plan" adopted a few days ago has been modified somewhat by later developments, but the ultimate goal is government ownership and operation of all property.

The state of New South Wales has had some precedent for establishing socialistic policies, which may quite readily progress along communistic lines. The Australian commonwealth has had extensive experience in the social control of industry and commerce. About ten per cent of her population are governmental employees. Her public debt is $900 per capita, and taxes amount to over $70 per capita yearly. She owns and operates her railroads which are noteworthy for the fact that they employ several distinct gauges, and pile up a handsome deficit annually. Civil servants proper number 230,000. She sets by law the wages of union labor and it is illegal to pay less. She pays bounties on many of her products, so that these union wages may be maintained without checking exports.

Australia is meeting a crisis the same as most countries throughout the world. Unlike the traditional policy of England in always meeting its obligations, Premier Lang of New South Wales, in the promulgation of his socialistic theories, adopts a policy which is essentially Russian. He proposed debt repudiation and starts the ball rolling by refusing to pay interest on a state debt due in London. The Australian commonwealth, however, mindful of its British heritage, assumed the obligation.

The Australian Prime Minister Scullin, also a labor leader, but educated to the fearful results that have followed when a nation, able to pay its debts, refuses, denounced Lang's conduct calling attention to the "deplorable moral and material results which have always followed the dishonoring of governmental obligations."

Mr. Lang however has achieved notoriety. Through his conduct the first British government since 1672 has failed to directly meet its obligations.

The "social control" of industries has generally had an effect upon the people comparable to strong brandy or even heroin. The illusion is adopted that the money is coming from somewhere and therefore everyone can live sky-high. In practice, "social control" invariably means control by the least competent.

It seems to get along in politics for a while but it ruins business. It preaches higher standards of living for everyone, particularly those at the bottom of the ladder. In the several thousand years that this doctrine has been discussed and the several scores of instances that it has been put in operation it has never been known to produce higher standards of living for anyone.

It has on countless occasions been proved to be wholly worthless.

Of course Mr. Lang is just a plain blunderer. He does not realize that neither Australia nor New South Wales can maintain commercial contacts with the outside world without credit.

Such a man is a curse to his people and to all the generations that are to come, because his mistaken policy will weight them down just as the smear on a person's reputation always becomes a handicap to carry.

Opinions Of Others

U. S.-ARGENTINE RELATIONS

A great deal of comment has been produced by a recent speech of the Argentine ambassador to the United States before a distinguished gathering of bankers, merchants and industrialists. Dr. Malbrán urged that our relations with the United States enjoy more complete and rounded mutual understanding, for although economic contacts unite nations and assure peace, a friendly and spiritual relation creates an equally fundamental basis.

Our relations with the United States up to the present have been practically confined to trade and commerce. It would be foolish to state that this contact is not a fundamental factor in friendship and harmony between nations. But in the same way as cultural bonds are not in themselves a complete answer to our problem, those of commerce and trade likewise fall short. It is necessary to consider all the different phases of national life in order to produce complete understanding between two countries.

Fortunately this point of view is rapidly making headway in the north. This is shown by the frequency with which representatives of universities and colleges as well as business men, are urging that all of the various elements entering into international relations be cultivated in the contacts enjoyed between the United States and Argentina.—La Nacion, Buenos Aires.

THEY opened up the falls in Spain the other day as King Alf left the country . . . and out walked the new president . . . odd, these Spanish . . . in America the politicians don't have to walk out of jail . . . somehow they manage to keep out—most of them . . . American justice, you know . . . probably a flock of new senators walked out with the president . . . at least there'll be room in the Spanish jail for criminals now . . . when Alf was running the country, it was wicked to make faces at the king . . .

Some people are just plain dumb—they can't help being that way. Others are conscientiously dumb because it's too much trouble to think or be reasonable. But they're all good reasons why the world doesn't get along any faster.

The new lord mayor of Berlin is over seven feet tall and will hold his office for twelve years. One of Singer's midgets wouldn't last long in German politics.

A breakfast food manufacturer has gone on a six-hour day schedule for his workers and is showing a profit. Will someone tell the boss about that?

A fellow in Chicago thinks that Illinois ought bar Wisconsin milk from his state because the Illinois have to pay for hunting licenses. The poor fellow, the poor fellow.

Doesn't Wisconsin have to put up with the depredations of some sweet 17 Chicago gangsters who seem to be taking possession of the southern part of the state. And who's next? Is finally bringing a gangster to trial for murder?

Walter Winchell tells one about the conversation overheard in a little town in Maine while the town band was rehearsing.

"That band sure is good," said one listener.

"Yes, sirree," said another, "and that Lem Smalley certainly plays a mean piccolo. He's sure some musician!"

"You betcha," agreed another, "Why Lem reads notes!"

OLD JOHN

He knew the flowers by name, and though a man was he, Blood-brother to the daffodil and rose he seemed to be. He'd lived his life among them, and when spring is in the air There'll be sorrow in the garden for Old John will not be there.

From dawn to dusk he labored through the years among the flowers. And I'm sure he lived a richer and a happier life than ours.

For his face was calm and placid, and he never seemed to care. For the glory that is business or the crown that skill might wear.

All his waking time was given to for-get-me-nots and phlox. To his peonies and pansies, and his sturdy hollyhocks. And I've watched him many a summer bending over bloomy beds. Just as tender as a mother stroking little curly heads.

Now the Lord has called him yonder, and the spring is coming on. And the tulips and the jonquils will be asking: "Where is John?"

And I'm wondering what the roses and the forget-me-nots will say When the word is passed among them that "Old John" has gone away. (Copyright, 1931, Edgar A. Guest)

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thursday, April 19, 1906

A second earthquake shook San Francisco, Calif., the previous night, and fire which could not be halted threatened the entire city. The residential district was burning that morning. The number of dead was estimated at 1,000 and the final loss, it was thought, would aggregate a half billion dollars.

F. E. Saenger left that morning on a brief business trip to Milwaukee.

Mrs. Hobart Keller entertained a number of ladies of the E. F. U. the previous afternoon at cards.

An important decision was handed down the previous day by the state supreme court at Madison, legalizing the vote of women in matters of school questions.

Another gasoline launch was to be added to the fleet in this city when the one then under construction under the supervision of Seymour and Walter Gmeiner was completed.

TEN YEARS AGO

Thursday, April 14, 1921

The assembly at Madison that day passed the Perry bill bringing all motor buses under the jurisdiction of the railway commission as common carriers. The bill was to go to the senate for its concurrence.

Mrs. Thomas O'Keefe, Sr., was presented with a morocco handbag the previous evening by Women's Catholic Order of Foresters in recognition of her seven years' service as chief ranger of the organization.

The engagement of Richard Roudeshush, son of Mrs. Adele Roudeshush, 675 Washington-st., to Miss Loen Ella Le Van, Niagara Falls, N. Y., had been announced recently.

Miss Margaret Hearden, 317 Madison-st., entertained at a shower the previous evening in honor of Miss Elsie Geizer.

Archibald Sebastian G. Messmer, of the Milwaukee archdiocese, was to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood of the Catholic church that year with a trip to Rome.

FIRST BREATH AND FIRST CRY

Professor Yandell Henderson of Sheffield Scientific school, Yale, asserts that every infant, no matter whether it be feeble or normal, should receive inhalations of 7 per cent "carbogen" (that means a mixture of 7 parts of carbon-dioxide and 93 parts of oxygen) in the first few days of life, as a precaution against atelectasis (failure of part of the lung to expand), secondary asphyxia and pneumonia.

If it were almost anybody else who made such a suggestion I would be inclined to deal humorously with it but I'm too wise to try wise-cracking with this man Henderson. He's the most maddening authority I have encountered; honestly, the more you study his work and his teachings or opinions in the hope of getting something you can argue about, the more convinced you become that the man is hopelessly right.

Yandell Henderson it was, who fairly staggered all us old experienced doctors several years ago by announcing abruptly that the ancient rite of spanking the baby has nothing to do with the establishment of breathing. When Professor Henderson announced this startling scientific conclusion a lot of us older doctors dismissed it as another instance of theory carried to absurd extremes. We medical men of wide experience and prosperous practice are inclined to take such attitude toward scientific developments. But after all the spanking ceremony is just another instance of post hoc propter hoc—because so many babies have breathed and cried lustily after the spanking we old doctors have just assumed they breathed and cried because of the spanking. That sort of reasoning has worked much havoc in the world. It has led to all the "schools," schisms, cults and fads of healing; it has devalued humanity throughout the ages and misleads millions of our people today through the agency of the testimonial.

I quoted Prof. Henderson's conclusion here, and numerous medical friends commiserated with me for being caught napping. They seemed to think the Professor was just giving play to his imagination. But I had no such delusions. I had a very uncomfortable suspicion that maybe the man was right—and I've spanked more newborn babies than I care to confess. For the ones that began breathing the treatment seemed quite effective—but for the ones that did not begin breathing it seemed cruel.

Professor Henderson has proved scientifically—that is as different from post hoc propter hoc reasoning as day from night—that carbon dioxide is the natural stimulant to breathing, and the little carbon dioxide in ordinary air is not enough, nor is the larger proportion that is given to the air from the blood, in the lungs, in the case of the newborn infant. Therefore he advocates the universal babies of the carbon dioxide-oxygen by inhalator. We may not feel that this is necessary in every instance, but it would be a great boon if the means of applying the inhalations were at hand for use in every case where the infant fails to begin breathing and crying lustily, as a normal baby should.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Don't Monkey With a Buzz Saw
From letters on the subject I gather that some of our readers are "trying" the insulin treatment for increasing weight or accumulating a little flesh, on the strength of the recommendations of this treatment published here. I warn readers again that it is highly dangerous to monkey with a buzz saw. No layman knows enough to manage such treatment for himself. Any one who "tries" such treatment without having proper medical supervision does it at his own peril, and without benefit of Brady.

Cryptorchid.

Son aged 6 years when examined at school recently was found to have undescended testicle. School doctor advised operation. Our family doctor advises not to take such treatment for himself. (U.O.V.)

Answer.—School doctors take such jobs because they have to live. I advise you to ignore any gratuitous suggestions from such sources and heed only what your own physician tells you.

No, Honey.

I have heard quite a few doctors say that our health would be vastly improved if we ate more honey . . . (O. R.)

Answer.—Honey is wholesome food for anybody who likes it, but it is silly to imagine it is in any way better for health than is sugar or glucose or corn syrup or maple syrup or lactose (milk sugar) or fruit sugar. Another common delusion about honey is that diabetic patients may eat it freely. There is no truth in that.

Is it possible for the Women's Christian Temperance Union to obtain permission to print some of your articles in leaflet form or to print them in national or state organs? (A. L.)

Answer.—Positively yes. Anything I have ever written is yours to reprint and use in any way. But you must obtain consent from the publisher of the paper in which the article appeared. My mother was a member of the W. C. T. U. and so I feel I owe the organization something.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

A S Clowny jiggled around a bit, said Scouty, "That looks like a fit. Say, if you call that dandruff, let me show you how you're wrong. I'll really dance a step or two and show you something that is new. Step back among the other Tynmites, where you belong."

"All right," said Clowny. "If you're sure that I am really wrong, let's see you please us with your stunts. You've bragged, so now make good." So Scouty did a funny thing. He swung into a highland fling. And when he stopped, he said, "Well, I have done the best I could."

The Travel Man was heard to call "Say, I'll do better than you all. I'm getting old, and yet I'm young at stepping 'round about. Just watch me closely. You shall see that I'm as fancy as can be." And when he started jiggling, everyone raised a shout.

In just a moment he was through. "Oh, my, that's all that I can do," he said, while puffing very hard. "We'd best be on our way. I'll lead you 'round the town a bit, as long as you're all feeling fit. We may as well see all that we have time to see today."

They loafed along a little street and stopped each time that they would meet a kindly, smiling native. Clowny always tipped his hat. The Travel Man, who noticed this, said, "Politeness never goes a miss. It makes me very proud of you each time that you do that."

And then they came upon a shop where they decided they would stop. A youth was working hard upon an umbrella frame. Said Carpy, as they gathered near, "Why, look they make those things right here. He'll shortly put the cover on. Oh, gee, I'm glad we came."

COMPLAINS OF JUSTICE

Editor Post-Crescent—I have been reading the cases of two men, who were arrested on the same charge of non-support, and charged of violating their parole.

One of them, although he had a job and was willing to work, was sentenced to the State Prison at Waupun for a period of two years.

The other man, charged of the same offense, was re-paroled and the officials had to find him a job.

Now if you call that justice, why were the two men not given the same chance or sentence?

How is our court being regulated? Are they being regulated according to a certain standard of laws, or does it all depend on how the judge feels in the morning when he gets up?

Now Waupun I thought was for hardened criminals and murderers. No man can class a case of this kind as either, even if he be a judge. A Post-Crescent reader. Maynard Streeter. Kaukauna, Wis., April 14.

ECONOMIES PROCLAMATION

On April 15, 1917, President Wilson issued his war economies proclamation in which he drew attention to the fact that the United States will in the coming year be called upon not only to feed its own people and army, but also to make very large contributions to the feeding of England, France and Italy. He appealed to all Americans to help increase production.

"It is evident to every thinking man," said the president in his proclamation, "that our industries, on the farms, in the shipyards, in the mines, in the factories must be made more prolific and more efficient than ever, and that they must be more economically managed and better adapted to the particular requirements of our task than they have been; and what I want to say is that the men and women who devote their thought and their energy to these things will be serving the country and conducting the fight for peace and freedom just as truly and just as effectively as the men on the battlefield or in the trenches."

England took extraordinary measures to meet the food shortage by night plowing and Sunday farming.

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Looking through yellowing records of the United States senate recently, there came to view a highly interesting and significant document.

It is a statement filed years ago by one Constantine Brumidi—an Italian soldier and artist—saying that the ceiling of the old agricultural committee room of the senate, with its elaborate portraits and allegorical presentations of agricultural themes, forms the "first specimen of the real fresco to be introduced into America."

This led to an investigation on our part of the man Brumidi and his work.

One has only to visit the capitol to be impressed by the work of Brumidi, who spent the last 25 years of his life lavishing his talent upon the gigantic task of decorating the walls of that building. In the corridors of the senate wing perhaps the genius of the man is seen at its best.

There are painted panels crowded with American flora and fauna. Each bird and flower is produced by the painter in exquisite detail. No two panels are the same; no two flowers and no two birds alike, yet there are hundreds of both.

Life Too Short

In another corridor one will see blank panels, painted in solemn tones with only the decorative frame work about them filled in. Quite evidently it was Brumidi's purpose to embellish all the walls with his living colors. But life was too short for the task.

He died in poverty, and in 1889 congress appropriated $200 to pay his funeral expenses. A bequest payment was also made on his contract for the mighty fresco in the capitol dome, to aid a destitute daughter in Italy.

Brumidi was a naturalized American in the days when he toiled at the capitol. He came to America in 1855 to escape vengeance of a minister of state in Rome. As a national guard captain he had refused to order his troops to fire "on the people," the records say, and he served 14 months in prison without charges or trial.

Work Unfinished

It was this incident that brought about the half-completed fresco work in the senate wing of the capitol. For Brumidi was a marked man already in Rome.

It was to him the Pope entrusted restoration of the Raphael frescoes in the loggia of the Vatican.

He went far with his idea of dedicating each of the senate committee rooms to its established purpose by the nature of its decorations. But the original scheme was not carried out.

Thus the appropriations committee meets in the room intended for the naval committee, with its figure of Neptune and other sea-flavored mythological figures filling the arched ceiling panels.

The adjoining room, decked out with scenes of Valley Forge and other historic army scenes, which Brumidi intended for the military committee room, is also a part of the appropriations mill.

PANTAGES AND FOUR OTHERS FACE TRIAL IN LOVE BAZAAR CASE

Must Appear in Superior Court to Answer Charges, Justice Court Rules

San Diego, Calif.—(AP)—Alexander Pantages and four co-defendants were held today for trial in superior court on charges that they had subjected girls of high school age to acts of immorality.

A justice court yesterday ordered the wealthy theatre owner and his alleged associates tried after hearing the testimony of Miss Lydia Nitto and Miss Helen Livingston.

The decision marked the second time within 18 months that Pantages has been held for trial because of alleged crimes against young women. In October, 1928, he was convicted in Los Angeles of assaulting Eunice Pringle, dancer. He has been granted a new trial and is at liberty under bond of $100,000.

A year after his trial in Los Angeles, he was alleged in "complaints" filed here to have participated in a party at a fashionable San Diego hotel in which Miss Nitto and Miss Livingston allegedly were procured for them through a "vice bazaar."

John P. Mills and Jesse Shreve, former business associates of Pantages, were alleged to have attended the party with him and will be tried at the same time. William Jobelmann, Pantages' former press agent, and Mrs. Olive Clark Day, accused of supplying the girls, complete the list of defendants. The defense offered no witnesses.

Mills faces similar charges in Los Angeles in another case and Jobelmann and Mrs. Day are accused there of operating a bureau in which young women were supplied to wealthy men.

Pantages and his alleged associates expressed dismay at the decision, but indicated they believed they possessed evidence which would win them acquittal.

A charge of criminal attack against Shreve was dropped because Miss Livingston failed to testify he attacked her, but he still faces charges of conspiracy to violate the juvenile act.

LEASE FARM FOR USE BY STATE PRISONERS

Madison—(AP)—In order to alleviate further the congestion in the state prison, the board of control has leased a farm belonging to Edward O'Connor near Hancock for use as a prison labor farm. It will offer employment for 50 prisoners.

According to Allan W. Bayley, secretary to the board of control, nearly 200 inmates now work on farms outside the prison walls. Approximately 125 of them work on lands adjacent to the prison at Waupun, while the remainder are at Pine Lake, Lake Tomahawk, and Oregon.

About one-tenth of the prison population is fitted for employment outside the walls on farms, Mr. Bayley said, although a much larger population could be trained in the work.

Walter Schultz, credit manager for the Post-Crescent has an almost irresistible urge for discussing certain subjects. In the next few months these will concern fishing yarns, spun as only Wally can spin them, and the annual struggle of his baseball heroes, the Chicago Cubs.

He is so engrossed in these two interests that he always takes one week of his vacation when the fishing season opens in early June at Gilmore lake and the second week later in the summer when the Cubs are playing in Chicago. The hot, burning weather of July never touches Wally a bit if he is in Chicago watching the Cubs in action.

Wally is the general big boss of the Sixth Ward soft ball team, which he declares to be the best little nine in the valley. He also captains the famous Elks' club bowlers, champions of the National Bowling league this winter. Wally is among the instigators of the first American Legion bowling tournament about five years ago when he was secretary of the Legion tournament. He is a regular sideline expert on boxing who has not missed a local bout for many years.

Mr. Schultz is a member of the Elks club and the American legion. He served as alderman from the Sixth ward for two years.

He was born in Appleton and now lives with his father, Charles Schultz, 1008 N. Oneida-st. Wally went to Columbus and Lincoln grade schools and Appleton high school. He worked for Butler Bros.

in Chicago for five years, starting in the tinware department on the first job he ever had, working up to head of the sporting goods department. After serving in the world war, Mr. Schultz came back to Appleton to work for the Wisconsin Telephone Co., and later to go on with his education. He studied at Bushey's Business college, completing the course in six months and then entered Lawrence college as a special student in a two year commerce course. It was during that time that he was elected alderman of the Sixth ward. When he finished his college work, he came to the Post-Crescent in 1925.

During the war Mr. Schultz was a member of the Ninety-first division, and spent eight months overseas.

To-night: Get Rid of BURNING FEET

The New Right Way THE OXYGEN WAY

To take out the agony—banish all burning, aches and soreness—try the new oxygen way and in 15 to 20 minutes your foot troubles are over. Just put two table-spoonfuls of Radox in a gallon of hot water and soak your feet for 20 minutes—you never had such a joyous, invigorating foot bath in all your life—you can just feel all the acid and poisons coming out of the stuffed up pores of your poor feet.

Do this tonight and tomorrow your feet will be so strong and sturdy and vigorous that you can walk all day long without discomfort. It's the oxygen in Radox that gets into the thousands of pores of your feet and chases out the poisons that have accumulated there for years—it's these acids and poisons that make your feet ache and burn and nothing in the world will get them out but Radox.

You can get a package of Radox at Volgt's drug store, Schlitz Bros. Drug Co.—3 stores, or any good drugstore—it is inexpensive and if it doesn't put new life and vigor into and bring blessed comfort to your distressed feet—money back. adv.

Reference Librarian Must Act As Information Bureau

A reference librarian doesn't profess to be a Solomon, nor is she an encyclopedia, but she most certainly is an artist about knowing where to put her fingers on information. She knows where to find out how to kill moths, who wrote about the coal situation in England, and how to find out when the first refrigerator was used. But there are some things that make the head of even a reference librarian buzz.

The other day someone asked Miss Mary de Jonge, reference librarian at the Appleton public library, if she could find her a book that a friend of hers had read. She said it contained about 300 pages, that she thought that the title began with the letter S, but that she didn't know what it was about. Another patron said he had seen a boy using a red book and he wanted the same volume. The fact that it recounted everything that has happened in the world since the beginning of time was all he knew about it.

Questions Varied

Here is a hit-and-miss selection of questions, subjects, and requests with which the local reference librarian has had to struggle in the past few weeks: what is the name of a cactus that grows round like a ball with cross cross spines, what is the meaning of the word Telulah, and what is the legend connected with Telulah Springs, who was Appleton named for and why, the different nationalities represented in Appleton, and what per cent of each, a poem about a pussy willow by any noted poet that could be used in an advertisement, articles about Byron that

AGAIN INTRODUCE 8-HOUR-DAY MEASURE

Madison—(AP)—Thwarted in his first attempt to get legislative approval of an eight-hour day for employees of penal and correctional institutions, Sen. Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee, has again introduced a bill in the senate to accomplish his purpose.

The bill is substantially the same as an amendment he offered to the executive budget. The amendment would have appropriated $300,000 for buildings to house the additional employees needed if an eight-hour day was established and $250,000 for salaries.

The assembly turned down the amendment. It has been pointed out that Progressives who voted against the proposal are in favor of an eight-hour day at state institutions but were disinclined to tack the cost on to the budget bill. Budget figures, according to observers, are always used as talking points in gubernatorial campaigns.

The new $120,000 laboratory of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif., will be named William E. Ritter hall in honor of the founder and first director of the institution.

Tells How To Get Rid of Rheumatism In 48 Hours

BIG 8 OUNCE BOTTLE FOR ONLY 85 CENTS

It Is Guaranteed

Thousands of well meaning people are taking the chance of being crippled for life with rheumatism.

When a rheumatic attack occurs they seek to deaden the pain with handy relievers—a method that usually ends with disastrous results.

Every rheumatic sufferer knows that painful, swollen, inflamed joints and muscles are caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood.

When you drive this troublesome uric acid from the blood you are getting rid of the cause of rheumatism—relievers won't do this.

While you are taking the nerve deadening relievers the uric acid continues to penetrate further and further into the joints and tendons leaving deposits so deep seated that they cannot be reached—this often means that the takers of drugs for relief only are disabled for life.

If every person who is afflicted with rheumatic manifestations would start at once to get the uric acid out of the blood—it would perhaps mean the avoidance of crippled joints in years to come.

This can be done by taking one table-spoonful of Allenru three times a day—Allenru acts on the blood and drives from it the uric acid that causes your rheumatic agony, and does it in 48 hours.

You can get a generous bottle of Allenru at Schlitz Bros. or any progressive druggist for 85c—take it with every assurance that it is a real enemy of uric acid—and of rheumatic conditions—and bear in mind, if it doesn't do as advertised—money back. Allenru is just as good for sciatica. Adv.

Know About Your Child To Help Him

BY ANGELO PATRI

We are a queer lot. No sooner does something untoward happen than at once we must fix the blame. Somebody is to blame. Somebody is to be pilloried, punished, made to suffer for the ill that has befallen. We spend a lot of time and energy in fixing the blame, make somebody very unhappy and then go our way briskly, as befits a duty-doer.

Now blaming somebody for something requires a nicer sense of discrimination, a nicer judgment, than most people will acquire here on earth. Indeed it requires an infinite wisdom. Only he who understands the human heart, knows its weakness and its great strength, its trials and its courageous endurance is worthy to take the seat of judgment. A boy makes a terrible mistake. Immediately the cry goes up: Who is to blame? The school; the parents; the boy; the church; the victim of the mistake. Anybody will do so long as we can fix the blame and forget the matter promptly. But that will not do. The blame cannot be fixed, the problem cannot be solved, so easily.

When a boy or girl goes wrong so that society is forced to hear and "take steps," blaming anybody helps not in the least. What we need to do is to search for the cause of the child's mistake, and proceed to make such an error impossible for the next child, if that is humanly possible. Forget about blaming people. Nobody makes such a mistake if he can help it. When he commits a crime against society it is because he has gotten to the place where it was inevitable. We must PREVENT his arriving there. How?

Know all about the children. Register every one of them and see them safely on their way to self control, to self help. That means that our supervision of children will be maintained from the time they enter school until they are self sustaining members of society. It means that we establish schools that will care for every child as long as he needs care or training, or education. For some this means but a few years. For others it means for the period of their lives. We cannot allow children to be tossed out on the world before they are able to sustain themselves there creditably. We cannot throw the incorrigible child out and let him take care of himself as best he may until the courts take him in charge. We cannot blame him for his misdeeds and forget him.

We are always tempted to say, "Put him out," forgetting that when we do so we have to leave another door open so that he may come back. He does not cease to exist as a problem because we have tossed him out of our immediate consideration. He is going to return—and be blamed.

Now instead of all this—the throwing out, the failure, the court sessions, the commitment, let us provide schools that will take care of every child, of every condition, as long or as short a time as is necessary for the safety of the child. This means a readjustment of some of our views.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

"I DON'T care what we do about Sybil," Sue answered as Jack's car sped down the street. "Only I'm afraid to have her free."

"Anyway the trial is carried over until she can come into court. There'll be a delay of a couple weeks," Jack answered. "And meanwhile forget all about it. Let's relax."

Sue nestled closer against him as the car shot out a straight white road, rain-splashed and shining and headed away from the town. She didn't say anything. She was content just to watch the gleam of the headlights on the slippery sparkle of the road. Just to know that peace and quiet and freedom from a constant terror had come back. Her father and mother knew that everything was all right now, Corinne and Harry were reconciled; Sarah—

She wondered why he suddenly thought of Sarah.

But as she and Jack returned to the city by another roundabout road, a little younger, much happier, now that the tragedy had not proved so tragic for them, although it had been infinitely more so for others, Sue remembered Sarah.

"Let's stop in and see how she is," she suggested to Jack. "I haven't seen her for hours and hours."

Filtered gold light sifted through the cracks of the curtains that hung at Sarah's windows. Sue and Jack rang and were told to come up.

Sarah opened the door for them and her eyes were shining softly.

"Oh, good! Come in and we'll have a party! I'll put the coffee pot on and call the delicatessen. Ted's here, too."

"Ted?" Sue asked.

Were things coming out right for Sarah too? Did real stories sometimes borrow their endings from a book of fairy tales? Sue noticed the deep rose color of Sarah's cheeks, the lovely shine of her large, dark eyes. But only the night before Ted had been with Joan, and when he had looked at Joan there had been worship in his eyes. The sort of worship accorded something infinitely lovely. Worship . . . not comradeship.

And for Sarah Ted seemed to have merely friendliness, warm friendliness, to be sure, but certainly not one that bordered on adoration.

"Sarah is the kind of girl who would run down a gypsy trail with him and scuff her shoes and scratch her nose and be happy doing it and so would he. So happy, that he wouldn't even know she was having a bad time of it. But when they came back, it would be Joan that he would put on a pedestal and ask if she didn't want to take a punch or two at his heart."

Sue caught herself up quickly. She had to be gay and smile, not grow reflective tonight. But all the time she watched her brother and Sarah she wondered.

Sue and Jack didn't stay very long. Sue was restless again, eager to get home. She walked to the window and looked into the night. A fragrance of something scented, faint and far, stole through a window. Rather a wistful fragrance as though it had something to do with struggles and youth and dreams. "The night is almost . . . pain-sweet," Sue coined a word.

Then she turned around slowly and forgot her musings at Ted's next words.

"Well, it's 15 minutes till I was to meet Joan, so I must be on my way."

"Joan?" Sarah asked unconsciously.

NEXT: Sarah plans a party.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

To "soft cook" eggs properly, immerse in boiling water. Cover and let stand on the hot burner or on the back of the range 2 minutes. The egg white will be jelly-like and the yolk soft, making a digestible and palatable food.

Soda should never be used for washing enameled pans. A little salt applied with a soft cloth will remove all the stains; and the pan should be thoroughly rinsed afterwards with plenty of warm water.

Apple pudding is a quick and easy pudding to make when you haven't a hot oven, as it can be made on top of the stove by stewing apples (or any other fruit) in a pudding dish; add a little water and sugar and nutmeg, then cover with a soft dough made same as for dumplings, and cover airtight with a close cover and steam for 15 minutes.

HOW ECZEMA IS CONQUERED

You can banish every trace of annoying Eczema and banish it in an astonishingly short time—this time next week your skin will be nearly healed and well on the road to enchanting loveliness and beauty—but you must use Peterson's Ointment.

Peterson's possesses such remarkable healing and soothing qualities that minor pimples and blackheads go like magic—that obstinate cases of burning Eczema are gone after a few days treatment. First application takes out itching and burning.

Virgie Hawkins of Wallace, Va., writes: "I had a very bad case of Eczema. The eruptions on one of my arms were so bad I couldn't use it. I had the trouble for over a year. I got a box of Peterson's Ointment and in 2 weeks my Eczema had disappeared."

Eczema and itching skin can't withstand the powerfully healing influence of Peterson's Ointment and one box will prove it. All drug stores.

MILLER BILL WOULD PROMOTE CO-OP GROUPS

Madison —(P)—Promotion of co-operative livestock marketing and reduction in losses to livestock producers would be provided in a bill before the legislature by Sen. Anton Miller, Kaukauna.

The measure proposes to license all livestock dealers and agents of dealers and brokers, who must satisfy the department of agriculture and markets of their character, financial responsibility and good faith; furnish $2,000 bond for the protection of farmers, and give the department access to their records in event of complaint.

In preliminary conferences which led to the drafting of this bill, and which were attended by managers of cooperative livestock shipping associations, legislators and state officials, it was explained that many livestock producers of the state

TAKE CARE TO MAKE THE BEST OF THE PROFILE

BY ALICIA HART

Profile hats are the coming style for spring, set back and a-lit the head to show your profile off to advantage.

How many of us, I wonder, do the best we can by our profiles? How many, as a matter of fact, know our own profiles when we see them?

Get acquainted with your profile. Your earnest friendship may improve it! For there are certain helps you can give your profile, certain ways you can aid and abet it in becoming as smart and attractive as possible.

First of all, get the double mirror habit of a day for a short time. Look at yourself. Would you be better looking if your hair was lifted off the car, curled around it, or curled in front and over it?

Are you, by any chance, getting a double chin? How about considering a chin strap daily massage and a better posture? For posture, you know, has much to do with whether or not your chin sags.

A definite aid to better profiles is the small slumber pillow, or no pillow at all. You women who still love to sleep upon a mound of feathers, with your head propped up all out of natural posture, should realize that it encourages a double chin. Try a baby-size pillow and see if you aren't just a comfortable. Certainly what you gain in psychological uplift at denying yourself something for beauty's sake should make up what you lose in height from your headrest.

Learn your best profile angle, so if ever you want to flash it on anyone hurriedly, you will know just what it is and how to show it to advantage. A famous motion picture star has one terrible side view, one almost perfect one. For years she had a clause in her contracts that only profiles taken on the good side could be used, and she stuck to it and made her photographers follow it.

Certain hats flatter your profile immeasurably. Never buy a hat for its front view only. Consider the left side, the right side, from the front and the back. Take your time and make an all-around-the-head survey. For certainly if you forget to let your profile flatter you, no one will admit it.

The way you do your hair has much to do with your profile beauty. This spring there are so many new coiffures that it seems a perfect time to do your hair a new way, a way that flatters both sides as well as the front view.

Know your profile and then see what you can do to help it.

It has taken 2 years of painstaking development to produce the General Electric Junior and the Junior Console. Small sets so good that in a masked test they were chosen unanimously over competing sets. So, confidently we ask you to compare their performance with any small set you've ever heard. Turn the dial on the new Junior or Junior Console. You will note at every point that the tone is startlingly human—as though someone were sitting in the chair beside you, talking to you. Tune in any station. Move the dial ever so little and the station is clipped off—like snipping a thread with a pair of scissors. And distance? . . . so sensitive are these sets that they will bring in clearly stations which heretofore have been just a far-away murmur, or that you haven't been able to get at all. See your nearest General Electric Radio dealer. Hear the new General Electric Full Range Radio sets. Make your own comparisons.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

X. Y. Z.: Your husband is certainly at fault—but somewhere down the line when you two were both young you helped him toward his present attitude.

To begin with you boarded at your mother's which meant that you got food, rent, etc., at the absolute minimum price. You made it easy and comfortable for him to waive all responsibility. In the early days, had you insisted on a home of your own, or on his saying toward that home, you wouldn't today be living on the edge of poverty with barely enough funds to keep you going.

Even now it might be well for you to find some excuse for leaving your mother's. It is rather late to start teaching a lazy, selfish husband what responsibility really means—but at least you might force him to be more generous in his attitude toward you if you threatened to leave home and make him find a new home for you.

All of which goes to prove that it isn't well to start married life with anyone's family. If the man of the house is inclined to be lazy and irresponsible, he will never learn better habits while life is made comfortable and cheap for him.

JERRY: You aren't nearly as unhappy about your bachelorhood as you think you are. The fact that friends all around you have been marrying these past few months has given you a feeling of self-pity but in your case, it isn't genuine.

You're really not the marrying kind and deep down inside your heart, you know you're not. The reason why your romances have broken up is because you never wanted to take the trouble to make a woman believe that you really cared. You say that all your lady friends have been unreasonable and too demanding. But from the instances you give of their demands, one can gather that they were just perfectly normal feminine beings who expected you to behave like a man in love.

You are far happier now with all your good friends, than you will ever be married. You have reached an age where your habits are formed, and your mind is fairly set. You know what you want in your own home. You're used to a certain routine. You admit frankly that any girl who married you would have to learn to conform to your ideas and opinions—and where are you going to find a young girl willing to do that?

If you happen to meet a woman of your own age who is a really good friend to you, you two might make something of marriage. But don't be over-eager. You are living comfortably and happily—you are not a man who is cut out for marriage—and perhaps you're better off, heart whole and fancy free.

JUST A MERE MAN: Yes, it's pretty hard on a man when his wife insists on making her family first, last and always the most important thing in life. You can of course be firm, and say that you have some privileges in your own home, but on the other hand, if you're a man of peace, as you say you are, and this state of affairs has been going on for a long time, it might be better simply to grin and bear the clan split. You can never kill this intense family feeling, and you will only begin a long series of wars, if you attempt to come before your spouse and her

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

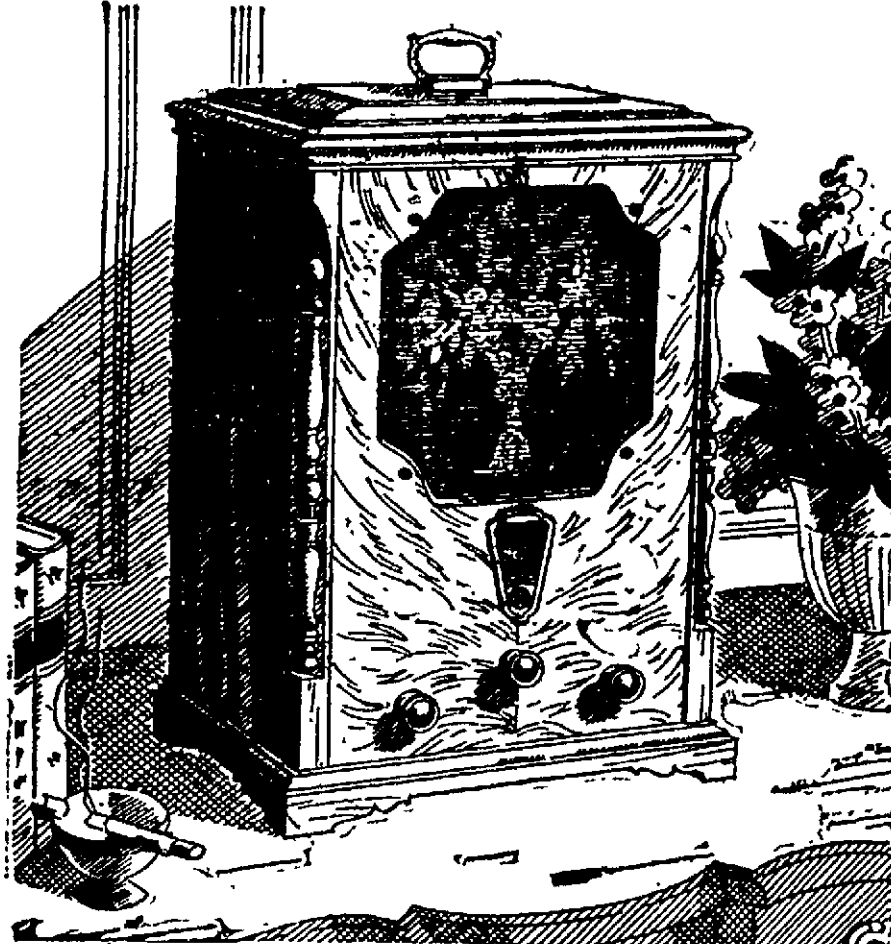

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child. All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

Trace Universe With Help Of Stars In Milky Way

BY LORENA HICKOK
New York—(AP)—Miss Henrietta Swape, who is the daughter of Gerard Swape, president of the General Electric company, and has a reputation of her own as an astronomer, lectured last night at the American Museum of Natural History on "Variable Stars in the Milky Way."

Miss Swape started working four years ago, a year after her graduation from Barnard college, in the Harvard observatory, under Dr. Harlow Shapley, its director.

So far, she has to her credit the discovery of more than 400 variable stars—"yardsticks," used by astronomers in measuring the universe. Her discoveries enabled Dr. Shapley to announce that the center of the universe had been found to lie within the milky way.

Miss Swape has not made up her mind as yet to follow astronomy as a career, but she does find it interesting.

"It has a tremendous appeal to the imagination," she said today, "but then, so have other fields of science. Atoms and electrons, for instance."

She became interested in astronomy, she said, because she had always to look at the stars. She majored in mathematics at Barnard, but she has "forgotten all that," she says, and doesn't use it anyway—put in a year of social service study at Chicago university, and then turned to astronomy. While working in the Harvard observatory, she took her master's degree in astronomy at Radcliffe.

"When I first went to work for Dr. Shapley," she said, "he assigned me to Milky Way Field 135—known among astronomers as M. W. F. 135—one of the sections into which the milky way is divided for study. I now also have M. W. F. 177."

"The variable stars which we study are called variable because they vary in brilliance. Some of them go through eclipses. Some of them keep expanding and contracting so that they are bright at some times, dim at others."

"Those which I have been studying are about fifty thousand light years away. You can get some idea of the distance by the fact that one light year measures 5,880 billion miles."

"Our work is done with camera plates. Every night, in Cambridge at the observatory in Africa, pictures are taken of the sections of the milky way under observation. We call it patrolling the milky way. Then we study the plates. There are six of us at Harvard doing that work."

"It's pretty much a routine job, but I like it. And now and then, when you stand off and look at it,

ALFONSO HAS NOT ABDICATED, AIDE DECLARES

"Merely Abandoned Power to Avoid War," Duke of Miranda Says

rights," he declared, "he has merely abandoned power in order to avoid trouble or even civil war."

"King Alfonso awaits the forthcoming elections in June to settle the fate of the country. He will remain aloof until the people have decided the form of government they wish and then will abide by their decision."

"The king is going to Paris and he will reside there with his family. There will be no decision as to further residence in London, in England or elsewhere until later."

The duke of Miranda said that the cruiser Principe Alfonso while bringing them here had acted under orders of the provisional government but that attitude of the officers and the crew had been "perfectly correct."

Has Not Abdicated
He said that the cruiser had sailed under "the Spanish colors, just red and yellow," and when pressed to persuade Alfonso to make a statement said that none would be forthcoming before his majesty reached Paris, but that "he wishes first of all formally to contradict reports that he had abdicated."

Although unheralded Alfonso's arrival here was not a surprise, since it had been presumed that he would come to Marseilles when the ship carrying him to exile failed to pass through the straits of Gibraltar. At 5:45 a. m. a lookout station in the harbor saw the dim shape of the cruiser loom in the fog and shortly after 6 o'clock a. m. it cast anchor about 500 yards from shore.

Harbor authorities were notified immediately but almost before they had time to reach the docks two launches filled with dark shapes put to sea at a point between Joliette wharf and the Grand Jetee. From the first sprang Alfonso and his cousin and the duke of Miranda, and from the second the king's valet with his baggage.

The little group halted two passing taxis and got in with ten bags, driving to a leading hotel on the Cannebiere, famous street of Marseilles. After a halt at the desk of the hotel, Alfonso three times admonished the porters to take good care of his baggage and then went up to the rooms to which he was assigned.

One of the crew who manned the launches which brought the party of exiles to shore said that before leaving the cruiser Alfonso had reviewed the company of the ship, the men lining up at attention along the rail before him. He shook hands with the officers of the vessel, in farewell. The cruiser was under the orders of Commander Pina, and had aboard Admiral Rivera, former minister of marine, neither of whom came ashore. The cruiser hoisted anchor at 8 o'clock a. m. and proceeded toward Spain on its return voyage.

(Copyright, 1931, by Associated Press) Madrid—(AP)—The government, attacking the tremendous problem of changing Spain almost overnight from autocracy and dictatorship to a republic, today used a heavy hand to curb threats of communist disturbance and separatism.

Martial law was proclaimed in Seville after Communist rioting there. A Communist mob provoked the fire of a garrison sentinel, and two persons were killed and nineteen wounded in the ensuing clash. Four police were wounded. General Cavallero, newly appointed captain general of Andalusia, was ordered to Seville immediately to take charge of the situation.

Seville was the second Spanish city to go under martial law since proclamation of a republic and flight of the royal family, who, it appeared today, would be reunited in Paris preparatory to taking up residence in England. Barcelona, the first, also was in the hands of the military today after syndicalist rioting with some casualties.

Other Disorders
There were other scattered disorders, with Communists in some sections using the red flag of revolution as a symbol of their own cause, but the general atmosphere was one of celebration rather than violence. A government order asked all Spain to go back to work today after its holiday of yesterday, pleading that the junta had vital questions to consider and should not be disturbed by problems of public peace.

The council of ministers was understood today to have decided that the integrity of Spain must be maintained until a constituent cortes or constitutional convention can work out its future status and that separatist movements such as that at Barcelona, where a Catalan republic has been proclaimed, must be suppressed.

President Alcala has asked Colonel Francisco Macia, president of the Catalan republic to come here for a conference; the Madrid junta's attitude meanwhile being that it cannot consent to any separatist movement. Another such movement has appeared in the Basque provinces where a republic, which some hold to be dissociated from that at Madrid has been proclaimed.

The government's program is to call parliamentary elections at some date not yet decided, allow the parliament as a constitutional convention to write the permanent constitution and then either by direct vote of the people or by the action of parliament to name a constitutional cabinet to replace the present provisional government.

Alfonso Message Withheld
Meanwhile the manifesto of Alfonso to his people which he left with the Conde de Romanones when he departed Madrid Monday night was still kept secret today in Spain, although some said it would be given out as soon as the last member of the royal family had crossed the borders into exile.

Although not revealed in Madrid, the departing king's manifesto to his people was made public in Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish border. In it Alfonso, admitting that he has lost the love of his people, declared that he was still king, but was suspending his royal prerogatives in the hope of avoiding plunging his country into civil war.

"I renounce none of my rights," said the manifesto, "because, more than my own, they are the deposit accumulated by history for which I shall one day have to answer for their preservation. I await the truthful expression of the collective opinion and while waiting for the nation to speak, I deliberately suspend the exercise of royal prerogative and take myself from Spain, knowing thus that she is sole mistress of her destinies."

The impression gained here that Alfonso has not given up his throne or abdicated but has merely left Spain until the future status of its government can be worked out in constitutional convention, and that until this convention is held reforms of the provisional government necessarily will be somewhat restricted. Plans on foot, however, include partition of some of the estates of the grandees, abolition of titles of nobility and the like.

Trains reaching the frontier were crowded with emigres, persons of title, aristocrats and others fleeing

HANK JOHNSON OF YANKS FANS 12 BOSTON SOX

Tires in Late Innings and
New Yorkers Barely
Win, 8 and 7

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ANK JOHNSON, who has not yet forgotten the pre-season hullabaloo over the new baseball used in the major leagues this year may well wonder after two days of big time play what effect the altered spheres is having.

It seems evident that the ball still is lively as the home runs are made at their usual rate, but good pitching performances appear on the increase as well. Eight pitchers went the full route in the two major leagues yesterday, an unusual number for the second day of the season.

"Bump" Hadley of Washington and Burtleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer of the St. Louis Cardinals, shared the topmost hurling honors. Hadley limited the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics to four hits while the Senators fell on Big George Earnshaw for five runs in the fourth inning and a 7 to 1 victory. Grimes pitched the year's first shutout, setting the Cincinnati Reds down with seven blows as the Cards won 4-0. Red Lucas went the route for Cincinnati.

Hornsby Gave Homer

Bob Smith of the Chicago Cubs and Claude "Weeping" Willoughby of Pittsburgh staged a full length duel, the Cubs winning their second straight 6 to 5. Manager Rogers Hornsby provided the winning run with a homer.

Continuing the surprises of the opening day, the Boston Braves and St. Louis Browns each won a second successive game and joined the Cubs Cardinals and New York Yankees in the top positions of the two leagues. Effective pitching with good hitting behind it told the tale in each case.

Although both were hit rather freely, Sammy Gray of St. Louis beat the Boston Braves 4 to 2 to gain a 6 to 4 triumph. Both hurled the full game. Selbold held the Brooklyn Robins to eight hits to give the Braves a 9 to 2 triumph. The Braves hit safely 17 times and the Robins contributed seven errors. Their infield work, with Thompson and Wright both on the sick list, was especially weak.

Gehrig Hit Home

The two New York teams figured in the leading slugging contests. With Lou Gehrig's first home run as the big blow, the Yanks scored five runs in the first inning then barely outlasted the Boston Red Sox, putting over a run in the ninth to win 8-7. Henry Johnson failed to last after fanning 12 Boston bats. The Phils played a close game, five Giant pitchers and scored eight runs in the second inning to triumph 10-7. Chuck Klein's third homer in two days was the feature.

In the remaining game, Chicago White Sox squared their series with Cleveland by a 7 to 6 ten inning victory. The Sox were outfit 16-10.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

CONNIE MACK has a quiet, personal way of taking a player to the side and asking him, "Now what would you do in such and such a situation?" ...Often he takes a pitcher over to one corner of the bench and asks, "What would you pitch to this batter?" ...It makes a player feel that he is a junior partner in the firm of Shibe, Mack and Co. ...Once upon a time Rube Walberg was about to pitch a game against Detroit. Mack took him aside before the game and asked, "What are you going to throw to Helminn?" ...Rube's reply was, "Who? Me?" ...Which Mack countered with, "Yes, you." ...And Rube said, "Oh, I'll just mix them up." ...That day Helminn made four hits. ...After the game, Mack called Rube to his office. ...That mixture wasn't rich enough, said Connie, "so we'll just have to give it a little adjustment." ...The adjustment was a $25 plaster.

Lawrence college, in accordance with a decision reached by the committee or commission which made a survey of the school's athletic program, especially as concerns interesting men students in Lawrence, has started what is called a modified recruiting plan.

During the last few weeks Lawrence senior athletes with representatives of the college office have been visiting various sections of Wisconsin, upper Michigan and Illinois interviewing high school seniors who are planning to attend college. They freely admit they are recruiting students but point out that technically they are not infringing upon any of the athletic conference rules which prohibit recruiting by members of the physical education department.

The plan is all right except that we are pessimistic enough to believe Badger schools which held cage tournaments this spring took in $32,064, spent $19,045 and made a profit of $6,509. Neenah made $343 on its tourney. Neenah made the most, $360.

Care rules have been revised to allow only one minute for time out periods. The plan is to speed up the game. Whether high schools will approve is a question. They don't have to adopt the revised rules.

That Eddie Kotal, athletic director at Stevens Point State Teachers college is keeping things moving is indicated by the fact he has started football, baseball and track among the intercollegiate sports besides indoor golf driving, horse show pitching and even checkers in intra muros.

Big Ten To Explain Its Stand On Sports Control

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS

Copyright 1931

CHICAGO — (CPA) — Presidents, faculty representatives and athletic directors of the Western conference will meet here, Saturday, and so the writer is informed—tell the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools the Big Ten is still quite capable of conducting its own athletic affairs. The information will, of course, be passed on to the North Central Association in very diplomatic verbiage but nevertheless the iron will be apparent under the sugary adjectives.

It will be remembered that during the winter North Central Association investigators were invited to leave the Northwestern university campus, where their activities were somewhat objectionable to the school authorities. In retaliation the North Central, so to speak, hung Northwestern on the fence and the university's standing in the association is neither here nor there.

It is doubtful if the Western conference is unanimous in its decision to administer a rebuke to the North Central Association for decision to administer a rebuke to the North Central Association for some members of the Big Ten incline toward the reformers. But there are enough Big Ten presidents aligned on the side of Northwestern to give a hands off order to the North Central.

If the conference goes through with this action it will be the first time any group has shown a dispo-

FORDS WILL CLASH WITH WAUPACA NINE

Invade Potato Diggers' Diamond for Season's First Practice Game

Appleton baseball club, better known as the Fords, will play the first practice game of the 1931 season Sunday afternoon when the team goes to Waupaca to meet the Wolf River Valley League entry, The Potato Diggers are competing in the Wolf River league for the first time. Last year the team was in the Central Wisconsin league.

The Fords will complete the week's practices tonight if the diamond is in condition. A workout was held Tuesday evening and several members of the squad have been getting in a few licks in the meantime.

Practically the same faces that started the season last year will be seen again Sunday when the Fords take the field. Rumor has it that Joe Shields will try for second base, although nothing definite has been announced by Manager Len Smith. Shields played with the squad a couple of years ago.

Lefty Behr will draw the hurling assignment Sunday and may be relieved by Dats Grove. The game being a practice session Manager Smith will give all the boys a chance to show their stuff without taking a chance of ruining a few arms or having a couple Charley Horses develop.

The Fords will entertain Waupaca here, Sunday, April 26 in the second practice game of the season.

GRADE SCHOOL BOYS MAY HAVE BALL LOOP

League Will Be Discussed at Meeting at "Y" Friday Afternoon

Organization of grade school softball teams and a grade school league will be undertaken by C. C. Bailey, of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. It plans now under way are completed.

In the last few years the association department has been asked to supply umpires at the various school grounds for late afternoon games between teams. The purpose was to have the games under direction of an older boy with resultant orderly play and a minimum of broken windows and the like.

Recently the sport has grown to where teams have been organized at almost all grade schools and suggestion now has been made that a city league be organized. The teams will furnish equipment, the Y. M. C. A. will furnish umpires and handle all details of the league. A home and game schedule will be arranged and games played twice a week until school closes.

A meeting of boys from each school has been called for 4:15 Friday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Letters advising grade school principals of the plan were sent out Thursday.

South Bend, Ind., (AP)—Having received formal notification that his first effort in defense of the heavy-weight championship will be made July 3 at Cleveland against Young Stribling, Max Schmeling today went to French Lick Springs, Ind., for a two weeks rest.

The German titleholder and his manager, Joe Jacobs, yesterday were told by Dick Dunn, who will handle the fight for the Madison Square Garden corporations of New York and Ohio, that the new Municipal stadium at Cleveland had been selected as the site of the battle.

Schmeling has five more stops on his exhibition tour, and after his holiday, will resume, finishing up in Chicago, May 8. He plans to spend six weeks in a training camp near Cleveland, but will train only five weeks for the fight.

Dunn, associated for a number of years with the late Tex Rickard, said the top price for ring-side seats would be set at $25, and that the scale for the rest of the seats would be worked out later. The new arena at Cleveland will seat 110,000, and Dunn predicted a gate of around $800,000.

JAPANESE ROYALTY OUT SIGHTSEEING

Formality Abandoned Short Time by Prince and Princess

Washington (AP)—Stepping for a brief time from the role of royalty, Prince and Princess Takamatsu of Japan, were in outward appearance today a honeymoon couple from a foreign land enjoying the sights of America's capital.

With their formal official welcome concluded last night by the state dinner at the White House, the royal couple turned to sightseeing. This will be their principal diversion the next five days.

Interspersed with tours, however, their program called also for ceremonious dinners and functions by both American and Japanese officials.

Most prominent in their activities for today was a visit to the tidal basin to see the famous blooms of cherry trees presented to Washington by Tokyo some 20 years ago. Another visit will be made to the basin Saturday when the blooms will have had time to change to a deeper color.

Customary tributes at the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National cemetery, Washington's tomb, and Mount Vernon and a visit to Fort Myers completed their itinerary for the day.

DIVIDENDS ON STOCKS JUMPED FAST IN 1929

Indicated Rate of Yield Down Again Last Month to 5.6 Per Cent

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—An analysis of the relation between the prices of stocks and dividend payments in recent years, with special reference to the present situation, is made in the monthly review of Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, of the Cleveland Trust company, published Wednesday afternoon.

Colonel Ayres indicates that dividends on common stocks increased in the boom year of 1929 at a more rapid pace than ever before in the history of security markets. This was the time when many of the dividends now being reduced were being advanced, as shareholders were permitted to receive a larger proportion of corporation profits. Railroads, industrials and public utilities all exhibited a more generous attitude then toward their owners than ever before.

The Ayres analysis shows that in January, 1929, regular dividends were being paid at the rate of about 3.5 per cent on the market value of the shares. During 1929 and even up to the beginning of March, 1930, or nearly four months after the panic in November, 1929, dividends were rapidly increased until their total had advanced by nearly 60 per cent.

5.1 Per Cent Rate
In February last year, the dividend rate based on market value of stocks was 5.6 per cent against 3.5 per cent in January, 1929. Last month the indicated rate of yield was down to 5.1 per cent. Colonel Ayres estimates the reduction in dividends that has so far taken place at about $485,000,000 a year.

Looking at the relation between prices and dividends from another angle, the Ayres analysis points out that "prices of high grade common stocks are now relatively high when considered in the relation to the earnings of the companies, but fairly low on the basis of the dividends being paid." It indicates that if stock prices are measured as multiples of earnings, they were much higher during most of 1930 and at the end of that year they were at the peak of the market in 1929. As earnings or share capital have fallen more rapidly than prices of stocks the ratios between prices and earnings, according to Colonel Ayres, are now higher than they were a year and one-half ago.

In other words, at the end of 1930 stocks were selling for about twenty times earnings against 19 times earnings at the peak of the bull market in the previous year.

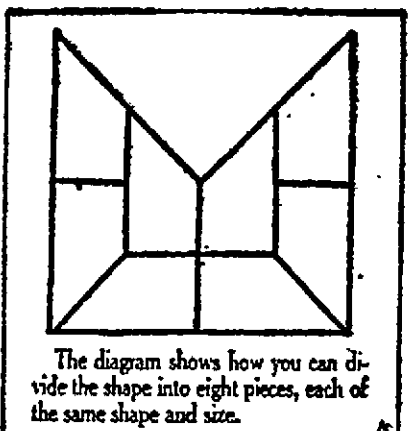

Indicates Faith
"This," says Colonel Ayres, "illustrates the faith that the investing public has in the future earning capacities of high grade stocks." The practice of corporations is to distribute about three-fifths of earnings available for dividends. Colonel Ayres finds that this average between 1924 and 1930 was 61 per cent. Although earnings have declined sharply, dividends in most cases had been unchanged up to the close of 1930, according to his statement—which apparently does not take into account the fact that over 5,000 dividends were passed or reduced last year—resulting in a ratio of payment to earnings of 114 per cent. Obviously, this disproportion could not be continued. Since the beginning of 1931 there has been a steady increase in the number of dividends reduced or passed.

BILL SETS RETIREMENT AGE AT FROM 55 TO 60

Madison—(AP)—The bill introduced by an interim committee yesterday in the senate will permit voluntary retirement of state employees between 55 and 60 years of age through the Compulsory retirement is provided for employees between 55 and 70. Women may retire at 55 and men at 60 under the proposed plan.

"The primary purpose is to promote efficiency in the state service,"

The government that is for government in Russia are strongly in favor of education for the lower classes.

Marriage is simply an agreement to live together. Either party to the agreement may without the consent or knowledge of the other, dissolve the marriage.

There are many serious obstacles in the way of a realization of the objectives of the powers that stand for government in Russia. It has been an enigma in the world and no one can safely prophesy whether the seemingly impossible may not be accomplished, the speaker declared.

Prof. Irvin Lubber of Carroll college spoke before the high school students Monday afternoon upon the rewards of faithful, sincere, honest effort in acquiring an education. Students who put in a good quality of work get out more than they put in, the speaker affirmed. He told of his experience as an educator in the East Indies and China. Prof. Lubber, who is associated with the school of education at Carroll college, began his work in that institution in 1909.

STANDARD RATING SCALE for Electric Refrigeration

Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?

Has it plenty of food and shelf space?

Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdy built and properly insulated?

Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration.)

Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?

Can the freezing of ice cubes and desserts be speeded up when the need arises?

Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature of the food already in the refrigerator?

(Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food.)

Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frozen" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?

Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage; and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?

Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run.)

How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours.)

Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?

Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?

Can the refrigerator top be used to "set" things down for a moment while the contents of the cabinet are being re-arranged?

Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?

Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?

FARMER NEEDS EQUAL CHANCE, EXPERT HOLDS

Industry Can Be Made Stable Again, Jones Tells Rotary Club

Kaukauna—“Place a farmer on a basis of equality in regard to taxes and tariff, and he will demonstrate farming is what it has been for the past century and a half, a sound and stable industry,” John Jones, Jr., agricultural expert of the First Wisconsin Trust, told 80 Rotarians and farmers at a rural-urban meeting Wednesday evening at Hotel Kaukauna. “At the present time the farmer is playing a disproportionate amount of taxes.”

In explaining why farm relief has become one of the most important issues in the nation, he said that from 1919 to 1929 the total investment in farms in the country shrank from $17,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000. The total income shrank in those ten years from $20 billion to $12 billion cents.

However, in these ten years the taxes for the farmer increased. Where he paid one dollar in taxes in 1919, he paid $1.50 in 1929.

“The world is passing through one of the most important periods of history,” he said, “wheat, eggs, butter and cotton have gone down to an unusually low price.

“For ten years there was a steady movement from the farm to the city, but in 1930 there was a change and the movement was reversed, although conditions are the lowest in the ten year period. The price of commodities in the city are undergoing a readjustment and will soon be down to the level where farm products can be exchanged on an equal basis for the things a farmer must have.

Farm Offers Freedom

“The farm still offers youth a chance at freedom, individuality and a chance to appease his tastes. Although the conditions on the farm are not at the best, there has to be created a fund to help the farmer out in winter. These funds are made in the city each fall, through industry has reached a high peak of efficiency.”

Gustave A. Sell, county agricultural agent, talked on the work of county agents. He said that more efficient production, more effective marketing, better living conditions and a sympathetic understanding on the part of the city people will bring about real farm relief.

“The county agent is under contract to the agricultural committee of the county board and the expense is borne partially by the county, state and federal government. This includes promoting testing groups, breeders’ associations and introducing new methods of raising crops and means of bettering crops.”

Charles Towsley, president of the Rotary club, sponsors of the meeting, acted as toastmaster. Short talks also were given by Charles Grode, Malachi Ryan, W. F. Ashe, J. W. Bruecker and B. W. Fargo.

SOFTBALL TEAM AND OSHKOSH OPEN SEASON

WOULD ELIMINATE GRADE CROSSING

Construction of Viaduct or Rerouting of Highway Favored by Mayor

Kaukauna—That an appropriation to either build a viaduct over the McCarty railroad crossing or to reroute highway 41 for a few miles to eliminate the crossing altogether, would be money well spent is the belief of Mayor B. W. Fargo.

With plans being made in various parts of the state to build viaducts over dangerous railroad crossings, this improvement would be in order, he points out. Some railroad crossings are being eliminated that have been the scene of fewer accidents than have occurred at the McCarty crossing, which is located a few miles north of Kaukauna.

There have been several accidents there that have resulted in fatalities, and there have been numerous minor accidents. The crossing was improved some time ago, but it is still a dangerous one, according to the mayor.

Another way to improve the highway would be to “route it through Wrightstown. It would bring our highway a more picturesque highway, as it would follow the Fox river. Some of the large cities are spending huge sums to beautify highways, and the change could be made at this place to make the highway safer and more pleasing to the motorists, he believes.

Social Items

Kaukauna—A 1 o’clock covered dish luncheon will be held by Lady Elks in Elks hall on Second-st Friday afternoon. Following the luncheon cards will be played.

The above deal illustrates the principle of arriving at a Slam bid by the use of the forcing take-out rather than an immediate jump assist of partner’s original bid.

By making the forcing take-out of Three Hearts East shows his partner, who has opened the bidding with One Spade, practically a sure game. Following this up by the jump assist to Five Spades on the second round, East likewise shows strong probability of a Slam. He has also shown that he has particular support for the Spade and that he has a long side suit upon which original bidder can probably discard.

Salient Points of Bidding

Contract: South passes and West, with three four card suits and a singleton heart in his hand, bids One Spade. North passes and East makes a forcing take-out of Three Hearts. South passes and West now bids Three No Trumps.

URGE CLEANING OF HOME-GROWN SEED

State Expert Points Out That Fanning Mill Should Be Used

Today, more than ever before, the use of fanning mills is needed on every farm.

All home-grown seed will be better seed if run through a fanning mill and carefully cleaned before sowing. Not only is this most valuable from the standpoint of holding weeds in check, but diseased light kernels, kernels too small to be fit for seed, will be removed in the fanning process along with chaff, dirt, and other objectionable material.

An example of what happens when a fanning mill is not used or when used but not properly adjusted is shown in a survey made in 48 Wisconsin communities last year. According to George M. Briggs, of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, who made a careful check of the analysis of 1-157 seedbox samples taken from seeders in operation in the field, 22 per cent contained sufficient noxious weed seed to condemn them for sale for seed purposes. Of the six samples sent in from Outagamie-co none were condemned.

Where fanning mills are used but fail to clean the seed well, several different causes may be to blame. Frequently selves are not properly adjusted or the air may not be sufficiently turned on. Feeding the grain too rapidly into the mill may also give poor results.

Any good fanning mill with fairly good control of the air blast and with three or four good sieves can do a good job of cleaning if patience is used in regulating the machine.

Fanning mills, however, do not take the place of clean fields but if properly and diligently used will at least avoid sowing weed seed with the grain at seeding time. Without their use much weed seed is known to be actually distributed through the seedbox from one end of the farm to the other.

MEASURE WOULD PERMIT PUBLIC HEALTH SURVEYS

Madison—(P)—Health surveys of public school children may be authorized by city boards of education or school boards in common or high school districts under the terms of a bill introduced in the senate yesterday.

The boards would be given permission to employ a medical inspector who would examine each pupil to determine whether he is suffering from physical defects or disability tending to prevent him from receiving the full benefit of school work.

Children whose parents object to examinations would be exempted by the bill. Reports of examination would be sent to the boards by the medical inspectors and the latter shall make recommendations.

County boards may take the initiative in providing for medical inspection under the supervision of a committee, under the provisions of the bill.

DEBATES SUICIDE

London—Suicide has one champion in Hugh Chilton-Miller, eminent doctor who recently told the National Council of Mental Hygiene that: “Religion tends to be unsympathetic towards suicide of persons suffering from incurable diseases. I feel the individual should be free to make his own choice, and we have no right to dictate a line of action.”

Following the appearance of the Queen in a pair of black suede shoes, many factories in England are busy turning out that type of footwear.

if you don't give it a Square Meal?

A square meal for lawns and flowers is 4 lbs. of Vigoro per 100 sq. ft.

YOU want to see that lawn develop into a velvety smooth carpet of beautiful green, don't you?

Then you must add enough plant food to the soil.

Plants, like human beings, need the right food, and enough of it. Most soils are deficient in plant food because we fail to replenish what plants take out year after year.

Give your lawn the square meal for plants! Four pounds of Vigoro per 100 square feet. Whether you are making a new lawn or have an old lawn it must be fed, and fed enough.

Vigoro, the complete, balanced plant food, is clean, odorless, easy to use. Read directions, spread evenly, wet down or rake.

Inexpensive, too! The average cost of Vigoro feeding is less than 20 cents per 100 square feet.

Already 3,000,000 home gardeners have used Vigoro on lawns, flowers, shrubs, trees and vegetables with amazing results.

Your garden supply dealer can tell you how much Vigoro you need. Ask to see the Vigoro Spreader, too. It saves time and effort in applying both Vigoro and grass seed.

Your dealer has Vigoro in 100, 50, 25 lb. bags, 5 lb. and 12 oz. packages. Order today. Or specify Vigoro when you talk things over with your landscape gardener, or nurseryman. Be sure to buy Vigoro only in the original package.

BEAU GESTE
BEAU IDEAL

Chapter 39
CROSSED PATHS

ENTERING the inn one evening to buy a drink and hear more of the local gossip, ere going up to my room, I came suddenly face to face with a very broad, tall, strong man whose hard face, cruel mouth, and broken, flattened nose were vaguely familiar.

I had never seen him before, but I had most certainly seen either his photograph or a newspaper reproduction thereof, obtained for me by William and enclosed in one of the many letters that had awaited my arrival at Uncle's. I was, moreover, word-perfect, from William's detailed description of this man, as I was of the three other miscreants whom I hoped and intended to bring to justice--my justice.

Luckily, he was glancing at the evening paper, and I had plenty of time in which to pull myself together, decide upon my course of action, and remember the invaluable histrionic teachings of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Williams.

And then was played as thrilling a little scene--with a thread of comedy in its grimness--as any in the tragic drama of my quest. For, ere long, Chink Dorson was warily and cunningly questioning me as to the character, reputation, habits, way of life, comings and goings of Squire Theophilus Webb of Witherby End -- his old acquaintance, Spider Schiltz!

Yes, I was actually being cross-examined by Chink Dorson, prize-fighter, burglar and gunman, whose sunning subtle brain and cold determined courage had brought him to the top of his profession as the right-hand man of the notorious Englishman, Doc Simon.

Who was I?... Oh, just a very ordinary middle-class Englishman, staying at Witherby End for some fishing. Hadn't tried it here before, but should certainly come again. Yes, Squire Webb had the rights and was very generous about them. Did no fishing himself.

Yes, Witherby Stream ran right through his grounds, and one could go the whole way in a punt, right through his park, and had obtained his fishing-permit. A good landlord and a regular fellow.

Yes, lots of scandalous stories about him, his guests, his household, and the goings on, there. In residence now? Yes.

And many more questions, gradually narrowing down to those concerning Mr. Webb's daily life, ways, habits, customs, comings and goings. I gave the fellow all the information I could and every possible help short of seeming to know too much.

For a magnificent new scheme, or rather enlargement of my original scheme, was forming in my mind. If, as Williams H. Williams had written to me, Simon had probably been released from prison before the others, and had then gone to Uncle, collected The Unsettling Sun and other loot that was the common property of the gang, and bolted with it to England--it was more than likely that Spider Schiltz had followed him in the hope of getting his share, and that Chink Dorson, having served his term and been released, was now in hot pursuit of both of them.

If this were not the situation, why should Chink Dorson be here at Witherby End, cunningly collecting the sort of information that any burglar gathers before "cracking a crib"?

If Chink Dorson's intentions were any but the worst possible, why didn't he drive straight up to his old friend's front door and, being shown into his presence, extend the glad right hand of friendship, and gather him in brotherly love to his broad and palpitating bosom?

No. Adding together the sound deductions that William had made, and Chink Dorson's present conduct, I felt pretty confident, nay certain, that he was at Witherby End neither for his own health nor that of Spider Schiltz, but for his own enrichment and the punishment of one of the two men who had double-crossed and robbed him.

How utterly splendid; what a wonderful and beautiful example of poetic justice it would be--if these two wolves destroyed each other, leaving me free to deal with the remaining pair!

PRESS URGED TO HELP OVERCOME TRADE SLUMPS

Philadelphia Editor Says
Newspapers Can Do Much to Solve Problem

Washington—(AP)—Newspapers of the nation were urged today to encourage a discussion of means of preventing recurrence of industrial and economic depression such as the country has passed through in the last 18 months.

Fred Fuller Shedd, editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, addressing the opening meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors of which he is president, said the newspapers have done their share in furnishing practical relief but added that they must lead the way to an adequate exposition of remedies to prevent recurrence of such situations.

"The newspapers of the United States have done their full part in a national movement of benevolence, of friendliness, of sympathy and practical relief from misfortune without equal in the history of this people," Shedd said.

"The readiness with which those who have responded to the need of those who have not, thousands of those who had but little having denied themselves to give relief to those who had less, has been a striking demonstration that the heart of humanity still beats, steadily and strongly, and is the convincing answer to those who have discerned nothing in the modern life of America but the chase for the dollar."

Shedd said "hard times will come again," and that even if the present depression and unemployment end newspapers have more to do.

Must Find Remedy
"The experiences through which we have been passing," the editor said, "ought to have convinced us that something more than relief is involved in the problem, and that our minds ought to be directed diligently upon the discovery and application of remedy and of means for forestalling and preventing a recurrence of this misfortune."

"I believe that there is no problem more seriously threatening the fundamental welfare of the people of the United States and the institutions of social and economic order which have served us so well and which are typical of our national ideals."

Shedd said "disemployment" did not follow "solely upon the folly of the stock market," blunders actual or alleged in tariff making and was not a reversion of the World War but was "definitely related to conditions in our economic theme and its development."

"If we do not want to risk the danger of such blundering negligence, if we do not want to incur the peril which government does have brought upon Great Britain, if we want properly and scientifically to diagnose the ailment and to determine a remedy adequate for our ill," the newspapers of the United States must be prepared and active," Shedd said. "There is no pending or prospective issue of politics, whether it be peril of a power trust or a matter of international relations, more pertinent and more imperatively demanding newspaper service in news and editorial columns, than this readjustment of the industrial world for recovery from its present disorder."

"There is no agency or means other than the newspaper press by which the discussion of such a national problem, its adequate exposition, the consideration of its various phases and angles, the differentia-

CHICAGO POLICEMEN VERY POLITE AFTER GETTING NEW ORDERS

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago policemen are radiating politeness. A group of newspapermen, posing as strangers looking for information, gave traffic policemen ample opportunity to sneer, but reported back that their investigation had revealed nothing but courtesy.

The newspapermen made their inquiry yesterday following publication of a statement by Mayor Anton J. Cermak that he wanted Chicago's police to be the "most courteous in the world."

"Say cop," one of the reporters said to one policeman, "what time is it?"

Despite the fact that a clock was in plain view of the questioner, the policeman turned traffic aside, unbuttoned his coat, pulled out his watch and said:

"It's just 11:15."

TROTSKY EXPECTS NO GAINS TO COME FROM NEW REPUBLIC

New York—(AP)—The establishment of a republican government in Spain holds no benefits for the people of that country, in the opinion of Leon Trotsky, Communist leader.

His views are set forth in a pamphlet, "The Revolution in Spain," written months ago and published recently by the Communist League of America (opposition) in New York.

"Even if he should assume for the moment that the revolutionary movement . . . leads to victory, then the fruitlessness of this victory would in the final analysis become equal to defeat," he wrote.

"The Spanish republicans stand completely on the basis of the present property relations."

Another opinion was expressed by Vicente Blasco Ibañez, Spanish Author, who was in exile at the time of his death. His book "Alfonso XIII—The Military Terror in Spain," which was first brought out in 1924, is being reissued by E. P. Dutton and Co. in it he wrote:

"Spain has this to gain by losing her king, she will win the sympathy and esteem of the great civilized nations of the world and that is something she very much needs to do."

He also expected education to progress under a republican regime.

Berlin's New Lord Mayor Target For Wisecrackers

Berlin—(AP)—If cartoons and wisecracks connote popularity, Berlin's new lord mayor, Heinrich Sahm, with his height of seven feet, one inch should become one of the best known municipal executives in Europe during his 12 year term.

His stature has been cartooned in every possible pose, columnists find that jokes at the expense of his size are much appreciated and spring rhymsters, otherwise devoted to love sonnets, have discovered he is one of the best subjects for lyric effusions.

To those of Berlin's population who forever keep looking back upon the grand and glorious days of the monarchy, Sahm is a welcome reminder of the age of Frederick the Great, whose Potsdam guards were made up entirely of men measuring better than six feet. To nationalists he recalls the time when the gigantic bulk of Chancellor Bismarck was something to be proud of.

To republicans of today Sahm is a worthy companion piece to Germany's grand old man, President von Hindenburg, who though reaching only to Sahm's nose, is much heavier set than the new, slim overburgermeister.

From the go-getters of Berlin, who consider the adoption of American ideas as the highest goal for the German metropolis, come the jubilant cry, "we now have an Uncle (Sahm) just like the United States."

Others in search for a truly German expression believe they have found an ideal nickname in "Heinrich der Lange" (Henry the Long). Sahm was elected to succeed Gustav Boess, who resigned after charges of irregularities had been made against city departments. The new lord mayor was formerly president of the Free State of Danzig.

him. They said he was "bigger than Al Capone," that he had a hand in "every racket known." Moreover, Al Capone is supposed to have warned him in recent weeks that some of his practices were dangerous for his health.

Joe came to the United States in 1903, then a boy of 16. He swaggers through the Mulberry Bend district for five years before his name got on a police blotter for a minor offense. From 1907 to 1920 he was arrested a number of times for assault, extortion and burglary, and once he was put away for three years in Sing Sing.

Along about 1920, when he had learned the ropes thoroughly, he blossomed out as a "big shot." Since then he has been put on the spot four or five times, but until yesterday his luck held out and bystanders usually came off the worse.

Police hauled him on the carpet a dozen times. They questioned him about the murders of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow. The Boss knew nothing about them.

MORE SITES FOR NEW POSTOFFICES OFFERED TO U. S.

22 Proposals Are Submitted to Treasury Department from Wausau

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Two sites for the $85,000 post office building at Wausau, three for the $235,000 building at Sheboygan, and 22 sites and combinations of sites for the $280,000 building at Wausau have been offered the Treasury.

At Wausau, the city offers to buy the present post office site to use for park purposes and to sell the government the southeast corner of Franklin and Drummond-sts for $3,500.

William Reid Stoddard, agent, offers the northeast corner of East Franklin and North Madison-sts, 21,750 square feet in area, for $15,500. The treasury estimates that 24,500 square feet will be needed for the Wausau post office, with 160-foot frontage.

For the Sheboygan post office, the government seeks 41,000 square feet with a 200-foot frontage. Adam Trester, agent, offered a 45,000 square-foot plot at the southwest corner of New York-ave and North Ninth-st for $85,000.

The Sheboygan Association of Commerce offered two sites, its first choice being Knoevers hotel property, block 155, Ninth, Pennsylvania, and North Water, priced at $174,250, and the south half of block 155, North Water, North Ninth, and Center sts, priced at $85,000.

Large Price Range
The numerous sites and combinations of sites offered at Wausau where the government wants 37,000 square feet, with 150-foot frontage, ranged in price from $34,000 to $126,000.

The government usually spends for the site not more than one-fifth to one-quarter of the limit of cost, which would be, in the cases of these cities, $17,000 to $21,250 for the Wausau site; $50,000 to $13,000 for the Sheboygan site; and $56,000 to $10,000 for the Wausau site.

Site inspectors will be sent to Wisconsin this summer to inspect these and other possible sites in these three cities and in Menasha, where four sites have been offered. The site agents will report to the inter-departmental public buildings committee, which will select the site.

Plans for the building cannot be drawn until after the site is acquired. Thus it will be about a year before any of these buildings can be about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The property is owned by the Riverside Greenhouse, and the loss is estimated by J. H. Boelter, owner, at $3,000. It is not covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered by William Held, caretaker, who called the fire department. The flames had made such headway, however, that the department could do no more than protect the residence a short distance from the barn. Most of the farm machinery was saved from the flames, but about 700 bushels of oats, in the small shed, were consumed. Mr. Boelter said he has not made any plans to rebuild.

The fire department also was called out about 11:30 Wednesday morning to a grass fire at 710 E. South River-st, and to a brush fire in Jones park about 12:45.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF SOUGHT IN 60 MEASURES

Business Depression Inspires Many Bills — Few Reach Governor, However

Madison—(P)—About 60 bills and resolutions for unemployment relief and insurance have been inspired by the business depression during the present session of the legislature but only a few have reached the governor's desk.

Long before the legislature convened in January, it was conceded that numerous measures would be introduced to alleviate employment conditions. The senate has already received 15 measures bearing on the present emergency while 11 resolutions have come to both the assembly and senate.

The new highway law has thus far been the administration's chief measure of the relief for unemployment. The law contemplates the removal of 60 to 80 railroad grade crossings in order to give jobs to 6,000 to 10,000 men. A bill postponing the payment of auto license fees from March 15 to May 1 was another emergency measure enacted into law.

The first bill introduced in the senate was a relief measure—providing for ice fishing in certain counties—but before it was finally passed and signed by the governor the ice on Wisconsin lakes and streams had begun to break up. Eleven other bills offering relief through ice fishing privileges were rejected.

Gov. La Follette might list still another bill which has become law and which was intended to aid unemployment and needy persons. It extends the time for the payment of real estate taxes assessed in 1930.

The assembly has passed eight emergency bills. Four of these relate to ice fishing and have been blanketed in the senate; two are aimed at railroads, preventing shops and terminals from closing without permission of the railroad commission; and providing employment for trainmen through raising the minimum crew on gas-electric engines. One extends fishing privileges the year round, and another reduces the time during which an injured workman is required to wait for compensation. The last two bills have been concurred in by the senate.

At the same time, the lower house has neglected bills carrying the following provisions:

Many Measures
Eight hour day in industry, surtax on income for unemployment relief; maintenance of storage and distributing facilities for food in counties, cities, and villages; furtherance of public works projects throughout the state to provide immediate employment; compensating workmen while temporarily unemployed; surtax on incomes to finance a building program at state institutions, and outdoor relief to employed.

The assembly killed a bill to temporarily reduce the salaries of all state officers and employees after prolonged controversy on the premise that the state should take the initiative in supporting the existing wage scale. A companion measure, to reduce only those salaries in excess of $4,000 yearly, was discouraged at its first hearing before a committee.

The most controversial bill on unemployment thus far this session is before the lower house. It was this measure—the Nixon bill—which caused the longest call of the house of the present session last week. The bill calls for an eight-hour day and 44-hour week for women in industry.

The carefully drafted Groves bill for the establishment of an unemployment reserve fund, reported with the assembly committee on judiciary. It was never returned to the floor after its first assignment. The fund provided for under this measure would guarantee workmen against unemployment if they have resided in the state 12 months prior to the enactment of the law, and have worked for a Wisconsin firm operating one month or more during the 12 months and employing six or more persons.

Some of the emergency bills which have stalled in the senate include provisions for extending credit facilities to people of small resources, an eight-hour day in industry, a forty-hour working week, pushing proposed work on harbor facilities for relief, and naming an interim committee on unemployment. Most of these have failed to return from their first committee.

CHAMBER BOARD TO ELECT NEW OFFICERS

The chamber of commerce executive board will be reorganized and new officers elected at a meeting of the board at Hotel Northern Friday noon, according to Harvey Schlitz, retiring president. Plans for the year will be discussed and reports read.

The Goodland bill to carry out a program of grade crossing elimination was sidetracked in the senate by the administration highway bill. Another senate bill for unemployment relief provides for an appropriation of $6,000,000 to the counties of the state. It was returned to its second committee hearing with a recommendation for indefinite postponement.

It would have appropriated temporary unemployment relief refunds to counties on a basis of income tax collected in each during 1930, and would have been financed by a surtax.

Both houses received several resolutions during the early part of the session directed toward relief, and all were promptly adopted. The majority of these were designed to arouse the federal government to the need of the hour. One, introduced in the assembly, ordered an investigation of alleged unreasonable wage cuts by Wisconsin firms, but thus far the investigators have uncovered little evidence. The firms called by the investigating committee told of unprecedented losses and said that only an act of providence enables us to stay open at all.

April Is Best Month To Plant Evergreen Stock

This month is regarded as the best month in the year for planting evergreens. Evergreens are very easy to transplant successfully if given the proper care.

In order to prevent disturbance of the root system and lessen the shock of transplanting, evergreens are usually removed from the nursery row with a ball of earth around the roots. This earth ball is wrapped and tied with burlap to keep the earth ball firm. This accounts for the abbreviation "B. & R." Balled and burlapped so frequently seen in nursery catalogues.

In handling the plants it is important to keep this earth ball from drying out or breaking. The plants should be protected from drying winds, and if they have to stand awhile before planting the earth ball should be kept moist by a covering of earth, straw, or similar protection. In moving heavy plants it is best to lift or roll the earth ball so as not to cause a strain on the roots, rather than to lift the tree by its branches.

Evergreens are worthy of the best planting care you can give them. Dig the hole deep enough so the a few inches of good top soil can be put on the bottom of the hole before the tree is set, and at least six inches larger all around than the size of the earth ball. Examine the tree to see at what depth it stood in the nursery row and plant it just a little deeper. A good way to measure depth of the hole is to lay a board across the top of the hole and then measure down to the center. This is more accurate than measuring on the side.

Set the tree in the hole without disturbing the burlap and put in enough good soil to hold the tree firmly in place. To remove the burlap before the tree is placed in the hole is apt to be dangerous, for the earth ball may crumble. There is no harm in leaving the burlap right on the roots, as it will rot away in a few weeks time. However, it is good to loosen the burlap around the top of the ball after the tree is firmly in place and roll it back or cut it off to expose the soil on top of the ball.

The next step is to fill the hole within 3 or 4 inches of the top with good earth, firming it with a stick or with the feet. Then pour in enough water to settle the soil firmly. Allow this water to completely settle away before putting in any more soil. Enough loose soil should be added later to bring the soil to the desired level, but it is best to leave a depression around the tree to catch water.

Subsequent watering may be needed especially with trees planted around the foundation where rain may not reach them. Always water thoroughly, giving a good soaking at weekly intervals. Cultivation of the soil around the plant will assist in growth and conserve the moisture.
